24. (1) The Provincial Government may make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(k) the manner in which an animal may be buried under sub-section (1) of section 13 ;

(l) the rules subject to which a Veterinary Assistant may take action under section 17.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The high mortality among cattle in Bengal due to epidemic diseases is well known, but there is at present no statute in this province to control them. Action taken on a voluntary basis cannnot be effective, as restriction on the movement of diseased cattle from one place to another, their segregation, and mass inoculation of healthy stock in affected areas are among the measures which must be taken to bring about a speedy control of the epidemic diseases. This Bill has accordingly been prepared vesting Government with powers to undertake the necessary control measures.

2. The Glanders and Farcy Act, 1899, already in force in this province applies to horses, camels, asses and mules. Under section 2(1) of that Act, its provisions can be extended to apply to these animals affected with any dangerous epidemic disease by a notification issued by the Provincial Government in the Official Gazette. It is not, therefore, considered necessary to extend the provisions of the present Bill to horses, camels, asses and mules.

(4) reference to a "holding" shall be deemed to include reference to a portion of a "holding" and reference to raiyat, under-raiyat and transferee shall be deemed to include references to their successors in interest.

Effect of provisions of this Act where inconsistent with other law.

3. The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any other law for the time being in force.

Procedure for effecting restoration of lands alienated by raiyats or under-raiyats in 1943.

4. If on or after the 1st January 1943 and before the 1st January 1944, a raiyat or under-raiyat has transferred any holding by sale for any consideration the amount or value of which does not exceed two hundred and fifty rupees, and if,—

(a) he applies in the prescribed manner to the Collector at any time before the 25th day of December 1945 for the restoration of such holding to his ownership and possession; and

(b) he satisfies the Collector that he could not have maintained himself or his family except by making such alienation of his holding; and

(c) he deposits with the Collector the amount of such consideration or its value together with interest on such amount at the rate of three and one-eighth per centum per annum from the date of his receipt of such consideration and the amount of any compensation for improvements effected to the holding, allowed by the Collector and determined by him in the manner prescribed, less the amount of the net income determined in the manner prescribed derived from such holding by the person in possession of the holding as a result of such alienation, the Collector shall make an order in writing restoring such holding to the ownership and possession of such raiyat or under-raiyat, as the case may be:

Provided that the Collector before making any order under this section may make such inquiry as he may consider necessary and shall give a hearing to the transferee, and, if the holding is in possession of a person other than the transferee, to such person also.

The Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 1944.

(Clauses 5—7.)

Effect of order for restoration of lands.

5. (1) When the Collector makes an order under section 4 restoring any holding to the ownership and possession of a raiyat or under-raiyat, such order shall have effect on the 1st day of Baisakh next following the date of the order.

(2) From the date on which an order under section 4 takes effect under sub-section (1), the right, title and interest in the holding accruing to the transferee as a result of the transfer referred to in that section shall be deemed to have vested in the raiyat or under-raiyat, as the case may be, free from all encumbrances, if any, which have been created after the date of such transfer.

(3) If on or before the date on which an order under section 4 takes effect under sub-section (1), the person in possession of the holding as a result of the transfer referred to in that section has not yielded possession of the holding to such raiyat or under-raiyat, the Collector may of his own motion, and shall on the application of the raiyat or the under-raiyat, eject such person and place such raiyat or under-raiyat in possession of the holding.

Manner of payment of compensation for lands restored.

6. (1) If the transferee of any holding in respect of which an order under section 4 has been made has not alienated the holding in any manner referred to in sub-section (2), the amount deposited with the Collector under clause (c) of that section shall subject to the provisions of sub-section (3) be paid to the transferee on his application and in the manner prescribed.

(2) If the transferee of such holding has alienated the holding prior to the date of the order under section 4 the amount deposited with the Collector under clause (c) of that section shall subject to the provision of sub-section (3) be paid on the application of the person entitled to payment under this sub-section and in the manner prescribed,—

(a) in the case of alienation by means of,—

(i) a bona fide transfer for valuable consideration, or

(ii) a bona fide gift by a registered instrument or heba, to the person in possession of the holding as a result of such alienation ;

(b) in the case of alienation by means of,—

(i) a bona fide lease for valuable consideration, or

(ii) a usufructuary mortgage,

to the transferee and the person in possession of the holding as a result of such alienation in such proportion as the Collector may deem fair and equitable.

(3) If such holding is subject to a bona fide mortgage other than a usufructuary mortgage and such mortgage was executed after the transfer of such holding referred to in section 4, the Collector shall first pay out of the amount deposited with the Collector under clause (c) of that section to the mortgagee the amount due under the mortgage as determined by the Collector and, if there remains a balance after the said amount has been paid, such balance shall be paid in the manner provided in sub-secuon (1) or sub-section (2), as the case may be.

Optional conversion of transfer of land into complete usufructuary mortgage.

7. (1) Instead of applying under clause (a) of section 4 for the restoration of his holding a raiyat or an under-raiyat may at his own option apply for the conversion of the transfer by sale of his holding into a complete usufructuary mortgage and in such case if the raiyat or under-raiyat otherwise complies with the provisions of clauses (a) and (b) of section 4, the Collector shall make an order in writing converting the said transfer by sale into a complete usufructuary mortgage with—

(a) in the case of alienation by any of the means referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (2) of section 6, the person in possession of the holding as a result of such alienation as the mortgagee, and for a period of ten years or such shorter period as in the circumstances of the particular case is in the opinion of the Collector justified.

(b) in all other cases the transferee as the mortgagee,

(2) When the Collector makes an order under sub-section (1) converting a transfer by sale into a complete usufructuary mortgage for a period specified by him, the right, title and interest in the holding accruing to the transferee as a result of the transfer shall, with effect from the date of such order, be deemed to have vested in such raiyat or under-raiyat, as the case may be, subject to such complete usufructuary mortgage and free from all other encumbrances, if any, created after the date of the transfer, and it shall not be necessary for the raiyat or the under-raiyat, as the case may be, to deposit the amount referred to in clause (c) of section 4 with the Collector and the liability for the payment of any amount referred to in the said clause shall be deemed to be extinguished on the expiry of the said period.

The Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 1944.
(Clauses 8—10.)

(3) On the expiry of the period of the mortgage, if the mortgagee does not yield possession of the mortgaged holding to the raiyat or the under-raiyat as the case may be, the Collector may of his own motion, and shall on application of the raiyat or the under-raiyat, eject the mortgagee and place the raiyat or the under-raiyat, as the case may be, in possession of the holding.

Exclusion of jurisdiction of High Court and Civil Courts.

8. Neither the High Court nor any Civil Court shall have jurisdiction in any matter which the Collector is empowered to dispose of under this Act.

Power to make rules.

9. (1) The Provincial Government may make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely :—

(a) the manner in which a raiyat or under-raiyat is to apply to the Collector under clause (a) of section 4;

(b) the manner in which the Collector is to determine the amount of any compensation allowed under clause (c) of section 4;

(c) the manner in which the net income referred to in clause (c) of section 4 is to be determined; and

(d) the manner in which the payments referred to in section 6 are to be made.

Continuance of action taken under Bengal Ordinance IV of 1943.

10. Any rules made or anything done or any action taken or any proceedings commenced in exercise of any power conferred by or under the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Ordinance, 1943, shall, on the said Ordinance ceasing to be in operation, be deemed to have been made, done, taken or commenced in exercise of the powers conferred by or under this Act as if this Act had commenced on the 24th day of December, 1943.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As a result of the prevailing economic distress many raiyats and under-raiyats transferred their holdings by sale to maintain themselves and their families and thus reduced themselves to the position of landless labourers. Such transactions mostly took place in the year 1943. It is considered desirable that provision should be made by legislation to enable those raiyats and under-raiyats who transferred their holdings in this way during 1943 to get them back immediately or at some future date. The Bill has been framed with this object in view.

Report of the Joint Committee on the Bill to amend and codify the Hindu Law relating to intestate succession; with the amended Bill.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Report of the Joint Committee on the Bill to amend and codify the Hindu Law relating to Intestate Succession.

We, the undersigned, members of the Joint Committee to which the Bill to amend and codify the Hindu Law relating to intestate succession was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Papers Nos. I to III.

We desire to acknowledge with gratitude and appreciation the very valuable assistance given to us by Mr. V. V. Joshi, a member of the Hindu Law Committee to whose labours the Bill owes its existence, who attended throughout our deliberations to place his scholarship at our disposal, by Messrs. V V. Deshpande and Rama Prasad Mukherjee, Sir B. L. Mitter, Advocate-General of India, and a deputation representing the women of Simla, who presented themselves before the Committee to voice certain representative views, and by those associations or individuals from whom we have received expressions of their views though they have not been able to accept our invitation to attend in person to expound them. Memoranda supplied to us by the representatives of the Hindu women in Simla, by the Maharashtra Branch of the All-India Women's Conference, by the Bhatia Stri Mandal, Bombay, by Mr. Atul Chandra Gupta, Advocate, Calcutta

High Court, and by Mr. Rama Prasad Mukherjee as a supplement to his oral evidence, are appended to this our Report.

Before referring to the changes made by us in the text of the Bill, which will be found briefly explained in our remarks on the individual clauses affected, we desire to make some general observations on two basic themes affecting the Bill on which we heard expositions from the witnesses examined by us, namely, the alleged incapacity of women as a class to inherit, and the impropriety of granting to women an absolute estate.

There is a body of opinion which still maintains that women as a class should be excluded from inheritance and should not be given absolute ownership over property they acquire either by inheritance or partition. In support of this opinion are urged (1) certain Vedic texts, (2) the general incompetence of women, (3) the evil of fragmentation of holdings and (4) the fear of the property being lost to the family. It is necessary to examine some of these arguments.

It must be premised, and all the scholars agree, that much of the vast Vedic literature has been lost—little remains in it of positive law. The Sutrakars and Smritikars who were well versed in all the branches of the Vedas extant in their time, when they were available in greater volume and exactitude, based their Sutras and Smritis on the law as they found it in the Vedas. In spite of this state of affairs, it has been seriously urged that the Vedic texts lay down a rule of total exclusion of women from inheritance and from full dominion over property and that the rule ought to be revived. Of the various texts relied upon, the foremost is the well known Nirindriya text in Taitteriya Samhita (VI—5-8-2) which occurs in the ritual of the Soma sacrifice and which reads thus: "Soma could not stand being drawn for women; making ghee the bolt (they) struck it; they took it when it became destitute of vigour (indriya); therefore women being destitute of strength, take no portion and speak more weakly than even the fallen man". Boudhayana relies upon this incident and this passage (II—2-3-46) for interring the rule that according to the Vedas, women are weak and therefore incompetent to inherit. This text has been critically examined by many eminent scholars including Professor Max Muller, Dr. Jolly (Hindu Law, p. 192), West (Hindu Law, pp. 117-118), Dr. Sarvadhikari (Law of Inheritance, p. 208) and Dr. D. N. Mitra (Position of Women in Hindu Law, pp. 601-602). All hold that the original passage only referred to the ritual of the Soma sacrifice and the exclusion of women from participation in the Soma juice, and had no bearing on their exclusion from inheritance. It is worthy of note that Mitakshara and Mayukha take no notice of this text, and it is legitimate to conclude that they did not consider the text as having any bearing on the question of inheritance. Reliance is placed upon other passages also which have not even been referred to by any law-giver. A passage from Satapatha Brahmana (IV—4-2-13) cited reads thus: "He then mixes it with the residue of the ghee left in the spoon: now other libations he completes by mixing, but this one he diminishes; for ghee is thunderbolt, and by that thunderbolt, the Gods smote the wives and unmanned them; and thus smitten and unmanned they neither owned self nor did they own any heritage". Another passage relied upon from Taitteriya Samhita (VI—5-8) reads thus: "Soma could not bear being drawn for women: making the ghee a bolt they beat it; they drew it when it had lost its power: therefore women are powerless, have no inheritance and speak more weakly than even a bad man". These two passages evidently refer to the same incident in the Soma sacrifice, and at most may be taken to have laid down a rule of exclusion from participation in the Soma juice; they hardly support the theory of exclusion from inheritance. Another passage relied upon from Maitrayani Samhita (IV—6-3) reads thus: "As Sthali is given to others and not the wooden vessel, therefore the woman is given to others and not the male". Lastly, reliance is also placed upon a passage from Nirukta (III—4) which reads thus: "As between the two, son and daughter, one is possessed of male sex, who performs meritorious acts, such as offering of pinda, the other possessed of female sex is only adorned with costly clothes and ornaments: a son, being authorised to perform meritorious acts, is entitled to inherit the property of his parents, and a daughter is not so, therefore she is only given to others". These three passages have not been referred to, much less relied upon, even by subsequent writers who favoured the theory of exclusion of women from inheritance; and it is legitimate to infer that these passages were never taken as having any bearing on the question of inheritance. The Sutrakars like Apastamba (II—14-16-20), and Smritikars like Vishnu (XVIII—34-35), Manu (IX—186), Yajnyavalkya (II—115: 123), Narada (XIV—12), Brihuspati (as cited in commentaries), Katyayana, and Vyasa recognised the right of women to hold property and the right to receive a share on partition or succession from the property of their husbands. Jamini's aphorisms that (1) women are possessed of wealth (VI—14), as certain Vedic texts shew that women have the capacity of owning and possessing wealth (VI—16) and (2) by virtue of Vedic texts, husband and wife, both being capable of possessing wealth, should perform the sacrifice jointly (VI—17), place beyond doubt the capacity of women to hold and acquire property. The three passages relied upon for supporting the theory of exclusion, were not even considered by the Smritikars and commentators, either because they had little or no bearing on the question or because the position otherwise was fully supported by Vedic texts which they had before them.

Other evidence to which it is unnecessary to allude here also points to the conclusion that Vedic literature did not support the theory of total exclusion of women from property rights.

The question of absolute estate is elaborately discussed by the Hindu Law Committee in its fourth memorandum and in the explanatory note attached to the original Bill. Those discussions we need not repeat; but we would briefly refer to the position in the Dayabhaga School.

The founder of the Dayabhaga School was chiefly responsible for advocating this theory of limited ownership. In support of his theory Jimutavahana relied upon two solitary slokas of Katyayan which admittedly referred to the property given to a woman by her husband. The whole of the Katyayan text is not available and in the absence of positive statement it is improper to infer that Katayayana wanted to place the same restrictions on property inherited by the woman. The word 'daya' in the couplet of Katyayana is expressive of two meanings, viz., gift or heritage, and Vivad Chintamani argues that what applied to the gift must be deemed to be applicable to inheritance as well. Otherwise the query "If so for the property gifted, what about the property inherited?" would remain unsatisfied. This topic is elaborately dealt with by the late Mr. Golap Chandra Shastri Sarkar, a jurist and scholar of outstanding ability and learning. He has pointed out how the texts were misread and how the wrong conclusions were drawn by Courts of law. In the Mitakshara this theory of limited ownership had no place at all. All property however acquired by the woman became her stridhana, and such stridhana devolved not upon the heirs of the last male holder, but upon her own heirs; such was the scheme of Mitakshara. If it is urged that people have for long meekly accepted the law as laid down by the Courts and that therefore it should be taken and retained as good law, we reply with the observation of Mr. Justice West (in the case of Bhagirthibai v. Kanhujirao (11 Bombay 285): "If it could be shown that the customary law, in this instance, rested on a palpable error, on a demonstrable misreading of the text of the accepted authority, then no doubt, it might be said that the popular consciousness, which had accepted its conviction of the law from a corrupt text, would much more accede to the corrected rule".

We have made no change in the preamble which expresses the intention of amending and codifying in successive stages the whole of the Hindu Law now in force in British India. We appreciate the difficulty of dealing with one particular topic of that law without having before us a complete picture of all the proposed reforms. It would have materially simplified our task if we had had drafts of the proposals affecting other topics, some of which, for instance, the law of maintenance, the law of legitimacy and marriage, the law of partition and reunion, the law of adoption, are not without their reactions on the law of intestate succession and might be capable of influencing decisions on some of the points we have had to consider in this Bill. But we have not found it impracticable to proceed with this, the first stage in the work of codification, particularly as the Bill is expressed to come into operation only in 1946, by which date we hope Governors' Provinces may have passed the necessary complementary legislation to make the principles of this Bill applicable to agricultural land, and much further progress may have been made in dealing with further topics of the Hindu Law. We think that steps should be taken to resuscitate the Hindu Law Committee, and to encourage the formulation and enactment of the remaining Parts of the projected Code in the interval which is to elapse before the present Bill, when passed, comes into force. It may well be found that the present Bill will require, before it is allowed to come into operation, readjustment and amendment in the light of decisions taken in connection with other branches of the Hindu Law.

Clause 1.—The new sub-clause inserted as sub-clause (3) to define the application of the Act provides in a more direct and satisfactory manner the effect produced in the Bill as drafted by the definition of "Hindu" previously contained in clause 2(e), and the first proviso appended to clause 3, which we have omitted. We thereby avoid giving an artificially extended sense to the word "Hindu" while securing, as the Bill intended, that its provisions should apply to those non-Hindus who are governed in matters of succession by the Hindu Law. Where the word "Hindu" was used in the Bill in clauses 2(2)(b) and 3 we have substituted the expression "person to whom this Act applies". In transferring to this new position the first proviso to clause 3, as drafted, we have inserted in sub-clause (a) the words "except in Chief Commissioners' Provinces". This correctly states the constitutional position. A Central Act such as this will be, cannot affect the devolution of agricultural land in Governors' Provinces, but is competent to do so in the centrally administered areas. We have considered it proper to indicate that the Bill is intended to have this effect in Chief Commissioners Provinces.

Clause 2, sub-clause (1), clause (d).—The words "whether he dies leaving male issue or not" have been inserted, because without them there would be room for doubt whether the case of an intestate in Mitakshara jurisdiction who dies leaving such issue is included. The text of Yajnavalkya, which is the basis of the law of inheritance in Mitakshara jurisdictions, states that inheritance is confined to the estate of one who leaves no male issue: when a man dies leaving a son, grandson or great-grandson, the heritage is unobstructed and they take in all cases of survivorship whether the property is ancestral or the separate property of the father.

We wish to call attention to the fact that by this definition of "heritable property" property of the nature of absolute debutter is excluded.

In the Illustration "separate property" has been substituted for "self-acquired property". Self-acquired property thrown into the common stock becomes joint property. A reference has also been inserted to "property in the hands of the last surviving coparcener", as being another category of property which under the law as it stands passes by inheritance and not by survivorship.

The omission of the definition of "Hindu" contained in clause (e) of the Bill as introduced has been explained in our remarks on clause 1(3).

The omission of the word "the" in clause (f) is merely a drafting refinement.

In the definition of "stridhana" we have inserted the words "by way of absolute gift", following the wording used in the Madras case, 21 Madras 100, when setting out the comprehensive definition of "stridhana" given in the Mitakshara as quoted in Mulla's Hindu Law, Ninth Edition, page 113; and we have added the reference to "arrears of maintenance" merely ex majore cautela.

Sub-clause (2).—The provision that stood as clause (b) of this sub-clause has been transferred to and incorporated in clause 8 of the Bill as sub-clause (4), in order that it may not by virtue of the generality given to its application by its position in clause 2 impinge upon the provisions of clause 5 to which clause it was not intended to have application.

Clause 3.—Both the alterations made in this clause has been explained in our remarks upon clause 1.

Clause 5.—Important changes have been made by us in that portion of this clause which deals with the simultaneous heirs, and our decisions were only arrived at after prolonged consideration of several matters of considerable difficulty and controversy. The Bill had already included among the simultaneous heirs the daughter, whether married, unmarried or widow. We have had addressed to us the argument that the allocation of a share to the daughter is in substitution for the moral or legal obligation to maintain her and to provide for her education and satisfactory marriage which rests upon the father, and on his heirs, that in the case of a married daughter this obligation has already been discharged by the father, and that these considerations justify a differentiation between the unmarried and the married daughter, the latter's interests being sufficiently safeguarded by the fact that the father's natural affection would prompt him to provide for the indigent married daughter. Those holding this view would not admit that the daughter has any right to a share otherwise than in lieu of her right to maintenance. We have not acceeded to this view and we have retained unchanged the provisions of the Bill, allotting a share in the estate to both the married and the unmarried daughter. We have also accepted the Bill's proposal that this share should be half that received by a son, though we considered various proposals to accord her a smaller share, or to differentiate between the share taken by a married and an unmarried daughter. Influenced by the consideration that the daughter's inclusion among the simultaneous heirs was based on the fact that she already possessed this right to maintenance, we have considered it equitable that aged parents who similarly have a right to maintenance should receive a share among the simultaneous heirs. We have accordingly included the father and mother when they are dependent upon the intestate, fixing the share of a parent, as will be seen from sub-clause (e) of clause 7, as one-eighth that of the son; but we have added a provision that any property so taken shall on the death intestate of the parent go back into the estate, and pass to the heirs of the son as it would have passed had it not temporarily been diverted to the parents, though we conceive the parents as acquiring an absolute estate in the property, with full power of disposal over it.

We have also included the widowed daughter-in-law, whom the Bill excluded from among the simultaneous heirs. The Deshmukh Act of 1937 had given her a right to a share equal to that of a son, or, where there was a son or son's son surviving, equal to that of her son, thereby in some circumstances adversely affecting the daughter's interests. At one time the Hindu Law Committee had contemplated including her, but in consideration of the fact that she is provided for as the daughter in her father's family and takes a share of her husband's property as his widow, the Hindu Law Committee thought it unnecessary to provide for her again in her father-in-law's family. The opinion was expressed to us that instead of providing her with a share her case should be left to be dealt with by the law of maintenance which propose maintenance on a generous scale for her. We have preferred to regard her as entitled to a share for the very reason that she has this right to maintenance; and we have accordingly included her among the simultaneous heirs, and have given her, when she is without a son or grandson, half the share that would have come to her husband if living; when she has a son or grandson living we have provided that her share should be reduced to one-fourth what her husband would have received if living, leaving three-fourths for the son or grandson.

When considering the case of the widowed daughter-in-law it appeared to us at first sight to be reasonable that the rights given to the widowed daughter-in-law should equally be given to the grand-daughter-in-law, and the great grand-daughter-in-law, and we tentatively included these also among the simultaneous heirs. When, however, we addressed ourselves to determining the shares they were to receive and how these shares were to be provided for, we found ourselves confronted with almost insuperable difficulties. Any arrangement we could devise appeared likely to be unjust to the great-grandson where his own mother and grand-mother, the daughter-in-law of the intestate, were both alive. We were forced to the conclusion that it would be impracticable to include the grand-daughter-in-law and great grand-daughter-in-law, for whose inclusion also the argument justifying the inclusion of the grand-daughter, that she had a right to be maintained, was absent.

To the heirs included in Class II we have added after the sister, and sister's son the brother's daughter and sister's daughter in that order. The framers of the Bill recognised that there was some ground for including them and recommended that if included they should be placed where we have placed them.

Clause 7.—Two sub-clauses have been added specifying the shares of a parent, and of a widowed daughter-in-law in accordance with the decisions referred to in our remarks on clause 5. In connection with this provision now made for the daughter-in-law we are of opinion that the male heir should be given a legal option to purchase from the female heir, on her deciding to dispose of it, any immovable property inherited by her along with the male heir. We have not, however, included in the Bill any provision to this effect, on the view that such a provision could not properly find a place in a Bill exclusively concerned with intestate succession.

Clause 8.—Our reasons for the inclusion as sub-clause (4) of this clause of the provision originally appearing as clause (b) of clause 2(2) of the Bill have already been referred to in our remarks under clause 2. We have slightly altered the wording of the provision so as to make it produce the same effect without appearing to affect the status of the woman as an agnate in respect of her father's and husband's families.

Clause 13.—The alteration made in clause (a) of this clause is intended to secure that stridhana consisting of property inherited from a husband or from his father, grandfather or great grandfather shall pass to the heirs of the husband, and goes some way to meet fears that family property may by becoming stridhana pass out of the family.

In clause (b) we have altered the rules for the devolution of stridhana of other kinds so as to secure that a son and daughter shall take simultaneously and that similarly a daughter's son and daughter and a son's son and daughter shall take simultaneously.

In consequence of this decision we have had to decide the shares receivable by them, and have by our addition to sub-clause (c) given to the son, the daughter's son and the son's son half the share taken by his sister.

We have postponed the husband's heirs to a position below the mother and father, and, following the order in which the mother and father inherit, we have placed the mother's heirs in front of the father's heirs.

Clause 14.—The change here made is necessitated by the alteration made by us in entries (1), (2) and (3) of sub-clause (b) of clause 13, but does not alter the principle embodied in the clause, namely, that heirs in the second and succeeding generations shall take per stripes and not per capita.

Clause 17.—We have made no changes in this clause, though it presented some difficulties to us. The framers of the Bill intended the clause to establish that where there is a marriage valid by Hindu Law though contracted outside the caste, there should in future be no doubt that rights of succession enjoyed by the widow and the issue were the same as in a valid marriage contracted inside the caste. We have been handicapped by not having before us the proposals relating to the law of marriage, and some of us have felt doubts about the effect of the clause in cases where a marriage is contracted by a Hindu with a person not only outside his caste but outside the Hindu community.

Clause 18.—We have omitted the first clause of the proviso which allowed a widow's right to inherit to her husband to be questioned after his death if the husband had made a will which is subsisting at the time of the death depriving her of any portion of his property on the ground of unchastity. The framers of the Bill were concerned to combat the practice of unscrupulous reversioners of blackmailing widows. We have been impressed by instances quoted to us in which widows have suffered grave injustice through unfounded allegations of unchastity made against them in testamentary depositions left by their husbands. We think that the only case in which it should be possible to attack the widow's right to succeed is that which we have retained in the proviso, namely, the existence of a finding by a Court of Law in a case to which her husband was a party and in which the fact of unchastity was specifically in issue.

In connection with clause 20, we considered whether the abandonment of the Hindu religion and conversion to another religion should be made a ground of disqualification from inheritance. We decided against upsetting the position established by the Caste Disabilities Removal Act, 1850.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 30th May, 1942.

3. We are of opinion that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that this be done.

APPENDIX,

I.

Memorandum, dated 8th May, 1943, submitted to the Joint Committee by Mr. Atul Chandra Gupta, Advocate, Calcutta High Court.

The Hindu Intestate Succession Bill, drawn up by the Rau Committee and now before the Central Indian Legislature, has more than one important aspect from which to judge it either for supporting or for opposing.

Its most important aspect is the attempt to lay down one law of inheritance for all Hindus of British India. Any person or body of persons who misses this aspect of the Bill and concentrates on some other aspect of it misses the important character of the Bill from which it is primarily to be judged. Any one who speaks of Hindu Unity or Hindu "Sangathan" without realising the force of the Unity of Law of inheritance in bringing about this unity merely utters slogans without meaning anything practical. Any opposition to introducing one uniform law of inheritance for all Hindus is inexplicable, except by a mental inertia opposing all changes, when we remember that by the acceptance of the Mitakshara system practical uniformity of the law of inheritance was established in Hindu India centuries ago with the expection of Bengal. And Vijnaneswar, the author of the Mitakshara, was not a Rishi of hoary antiquity, but a secular writer of comparatively modern historical times. The idea that there is something "religious" in the law of inheritance, so that to change it would be to hit something religious flourishes only on ignorance. The Mitakshara distinctly says that the Smriti texts relating to inheritance are mostly based on usage of people (Prayen ashmin prokarancy loka-byabaharani bachanani). Jimutavahana, the author of the Dayabhaga, who deduces his scheme of inheritance not by the test of nearness of blood, but on the theory of efficacy of Pinda in the Parvana Sradh ceremony, did not think that law of inheritance was therefore something religious. He was using the Parvana Sradh Pinda merely as a theory for deducing the scheme of inheritance which according to him ought to be accepted. He definitely says that if the learned are not satisfied with his reasoning based on the Pinda theory, but requires that the scheme should follow from the words of the texts, his scheme does so (Athatrapiritosho bidusham bachanik ebayamartha tathapi yathokta eba bachanayorarthograhya kim bistharena). In performing the task of providing one law for all Hindus the Bill generally accepts the Dayabhaga law of inheritance for near succession, and the Mitakshara law for distant succession. The ability with which the Rau Committee has performed this task is a marvel of acute and accurate analysis both of the principles of the Dayabhaga and the Mitakshara as well as of the case law which has developed in course of administration of justice. This scheme of one uniform law of succession for all Hindus, may be with some modifications, should be supported by all Hindus, who desire with sincerity unity of Hindu India. Women's organisation throughout India should give explicit support to this aspect of the Bill, without confining themselves only to those parts of the Bill where new rights are given to women. For after all national welfare as a whole ought to be the concern of women as well as of men if real equality of the sexes is the ideal.

The other important aspect of the Bill is the attempt to remove disqualifications of women in the matter of inheritance merely because they are women. The warm support which this feature of the Bill has received from all women orgainsations in India at once shows the hollowness of the contention, advanced by some people, that Hindu women are quite satisfied with the law as it is, so happy is their lot in Hindu society by the operation of natural love and reverence in spite of legal disability. There are no reasons for these disqualifications at the present time, whatever might be the historical origin of these disqualifications. The arrangement that fragmentation of property whold be the result of introducing more female heirs and therefore economically detrimental to the society is unfounded if sincere. On the whole no economic change worth noticing would follow and a meaningless injustice, including psychological sense of injustice would be removed. In Bengal, for instance, the majority of agriculturists are Mussalmans amongst whom the daughters inherit along with sons. Is the condition of Mussalman agriculturists of Bengal economically worse than that of the Hindu agriculturists? Again, what is really behind the opposition is the mental inertia which oppose all changes. The Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act, 1929, introducing some female as heirs who were not so before has been passed for some years now for Hindus governed by the Mitakshara law and the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act was passed in 1937 and amended in 1938, making the widow and the widow of a predeceased son heirs along with the son, but no evil economic effect on Hindu society is apparent. No groundless fear should stand in the way of this aspect of the Bill being passed into law. Hindu men should unhesitatingly concede the proposed rights to Hindu women, showing by deed what they profess in words, viz., their great reverence for the mothers of the community.

II

Memorandum submitted to the Joint Committee by the representatives of the women of Simla.

We, the undersigned, on behalf of Hindu women in Simla submit the following points for the consideration of the Joint Select Committee. While strongly supporting the main principles embodied in the intestate succession Bill to heritable property namely (1) an uniform law for all Hindus in British India, (2) the removal of the sex disqualification and (3) the abolition of the limited estate for women, we should like to submit the following points for the consideration of the Select Commitee. We hope that the Committee will accept our suggestions and amend the Bill accordingly.

Our suggestions are detailed below:—

1. We feel that though this Bill seeks to remove sex disqualification it does not do so fully as there is a great inequality between the share of the son and daughter. We suggest that—

(a) A daughter should not only be a simultaneous heir but should share equally with the son in the father's property.

(b) If son's son and son's son's son are included as simultaneous heirs then the daughter's son, the daughter's daughter and the son's daughter should also be simultaneous heirs—otherwise they should all come in together after the simultaneous heirs. We are aware of the arguments against this procedure but we feel that these can be met provided an unprejudiced view is taken. We detail below the arguments against an equal distribution and the answers to these objections:—

Objection.—(i) The married daughter is not a gotrays of her father and disintegration of property will result by giving her a share.

Answers.—(a) The daughter is as much the object of parental affection and considering all points of view it is better that a woman should inherit as a daughter than as a daughter-in-law as then she is less likely to be disinherited by a will. We have no objection if the widowed daughter-in-law too is included to the share of the predeceased son, but this should not prejudice the daughter's share. We are quite willing that the widowed daughter-in-law be given maintenance rights rather than inheritance rights in her father-in-laws property—she will come in as a daughter elsewhere.

(b) The ancient shastras do not exclude a daughter from inheritance. Sukra Smriti says that if a man divides his property during his lifetime, the daughter should be given half a share; ¼th share is mentioned by Yajnavalka, Kalyana and Manu and they are not quite clear if it is ¼th share from each son or only of all the sons. As the question of share is so undecided in Smriti authority, we feel that in view of the considerations of equality and of modern requirements, an equal share should be given.

(c) As regards disintegration of property, as partition is allowed in regard to heritable property and this is constantly taking place, there is no reason to fear that the inclusion of the daughter alone should make for disintegration. Besides, the share a daughter takes comes back via the daughter-in-law who also is the daughter in some other family. Provision can be made in regard to certain minor difficulties, e.g., in regard to the parental dwelling house, a right of pre-emption can be given over a number of years.

Objection.—(ii) As the son is authorised to give Pinda and is involved in all expenses, he must inherit the property.

Answer.—As it is allowable for a widow to give Pinda, there is no reason why the daughter should not be included. However, if there is strong religious scruples in regard to this ,all that is necessary is to provide that a certain percentage of the intestate property be set aside for whoever will offer Pinda and the remainder of the property be divided amongst the simultaneous heirs. Of course if the daughter is only given a half share then the need for this does not arise. In the same manner any debts incurred by the intestate should be paid from the property before it is distributed amongst the heirs.

2. (a) Stridhan Rules.—In section 13-B we are of opinion that there should be a change by which the son is included as a simultaneous heir with the daughter. The actual share that is allocated to him should be the same as the daughter receives in her father's property, i.e., if the daughter receives an equal share then the son should receive an equal share in the mother's property. If the daughter is given ¼ share in the father's property then the son should be given ¼ share in his mother's property.

(b) Certain changes are also necessary in the order in which Stridhan devolves on others than the immediate heirs. We are of opinion that Stridhan derived from the father should devolve on the father's heirs before the husband's heirs, and vice versa.

3. The abolition of the limited estate for women.—This, of course, is a major principle of the Bill with which we are in full accord. Limited estate has not only been the cause of much litigation but is foreign to Hindu Law itself. Its abolition is not only a pressing reform but must meet with the approval of all those who have the interests of Hindu Law itself. We are purposely reframing from entering into the argument that Hindu women are incapable of being trusted with property such an argument has no value at all and is evidently based on the premise that Hindu women are more backward than the women of all sister communities. We are entirely unwilling to countenance such a proposition or enter into argument in regard to it.

Clause 1(3) of the Bill.

Suggested amendment to clause 1(3) of the Bill.—The proposed legislation is designed to redress a real grievance of Hindu women and has been undertaken in response to an united demand of the community specially of those of its members who recognise the justice of our cause and the pressing needs of the present conditions of the society. We, therefore, suggest that unless the Rau Committee is re-appointed immediately to carry out the work of revision and Codification of the whole of Hindu Law there is no valid reason to postpone the operation of the proposed Act to 1946. Under such circumstances we request that as soon as this Bill on intestate succession is passed it should be enforced Of course, we are strongly of opinion that the Rau Committee should be allowed to complete its work of Codification.

Conclusion.—We have put forward our views before the Joint Select Committee after much thought and deliberations. We have considered all practical difficulties and we feel that the solution at which we have arrived should meet with the approval of all. The amendments we have suggested while bringing the Bill into line with the requirements of equity and the social structure of our times has all along kept intact the fundamentals of Hindu Law itself according to the express desire of the authors of the Bill. In proposing the aforesaid amendments we have been careful in avoiding any encroachment on the main principles embodied in the Bill, for we are fully aware that the Central Legislature is already committed to the three main principles when it forwarded the Bill for the consideration of the Select Committee of both Houses.

Finally we thank the Chairman and the members of the Joint Select Committee for giving us a patient hearing. We trust that the Committee will consider the amendments we have proposed and will find it possible to incorporate them into the Bill.

Memorandum submitted to the Joint Committee by the Maharashtra Branch of the All-India Women's Conference.

In connection with the Hindu Law of Inheritence Amendment Bill which has recently been referred to the Select Committee, we want to make the following suggestions which may kindly be considered by the Select Committee.

Clause 2(1)(c).—The definition of Hindu should be widened to include Converts to Hinduism. The term Hindu to be made applicable to all persons who profess to call themselves Hindus.

Clause 2(1)(h).—The terms in "Hindu Law" like dattaka and other adopted sons should be precisely defined for the purposes of the Bill. (Merely stating that the terms used in this Sub-clause will "have the same meaning as in the Hindu Law" leaves them vague). We would favour the recommendation contained in the explanatory note on p. 4, viz. "It is worth considering whether the law should not be further simplified by putting all adopted sons, whatever the form of adoption, on the same footing as natural-born sons for the purposes of reckoning relationship."

Clause 3.—On filling the declaration before a duly constituted authority, any person governed by the Marumakkattayam, Aliasantana or Nambudri, law of inheritance should be permitted to be governed by the new Law of Inheritance. (The Rau Bill.) Such practice will in time tend to unify law all over the land.

Clause 3(b) 1 and 11.—These should be deleted so as to make the law applicable to the devolution of all kinds of property including land.

Clause 5.—The list of enumerated heirs is considerably simplified. In our opinion the devolution of property should be limited to agnates only. Distant heirs (cognates) to be excluded in favour of the State.

Clause 7.—Is it presumed that this clause will be applicable to those parties who are married before the date on which the Bill becomes an Act (1946 or as the case may be).

Clause 10.—In view of the proposed amendment to clause 5 clause 10 becomes redundant. But if the amendment is not agreed to, the property should devolve on institutions recognised by the State such as Universities and other educational and health institutions.

Clause 11(3)(a)(b)(c).—The property in this case should devolve on institutions recognised by the State such as Universities and other educational and health institutions.

Clauses 12 and 13, Stridhan.—This term now includes property which is inherited by a woman in her own right. She is also made an absolute owner of her property irrespective of its source. This is a statutory recognition of her equal status in law. The devolution of property provided in 13(b) accords preferential treatment to women and there militates against the principle of equality. The property therefore should devolve according to 13(a) only.

Clause 18.—This recommendation will greatly safeguard a widow's position.

Since both men and women will have absolute right over their property some provision as follows is perhaps necessary. "No husband or wife shall have the power to demise or bequeath more than a stated proportion of his or her property; The remaining property should go to his or her heirs as provided by the Law of Intestacy.

The Daughter.—Under the said Bill the daughter is entitled to succeed along with the son. Thus the Bill removes the distinction between the male and the female issues, excepting that the Daughter is entitled to only half the share of the son. Once the distinction between the sexes is removed so far as the capacity to succeed is concerned, there is no reason why the principle of representation which is applied to the male issues should not be applied to female issues also. Thus the issues male and female of a predeceased married daughter should be allowed to take the share which their mother should have taken had she been alive at the time when succession opens.

Daughters of predeceased sons.—Similarly in the case of a predeceased son his share should go BY REPRESENTATION to his sons and Daughters.

Widows of Predeceased son, son's son, and son's son's son.—Under the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1937, as amended by the 1938 Act, the widows of predeceased (1) son, (2) son's son, (3) son's son's son are entitled to succeed simultaneously with the sons and widow of the Propositus. These widows are denied this right under the present Bill under consideration. We would like to suggest that the existing rights should not be curtailed by the coming Bill.

Widows of Gotraja Sapindas.—According to the view taken by the Bombay High Court in Lallubhai v. Mankuvarbai, I. L. R. 2 Bom. 788, the widows of Gotraja Sapindas become on marriage Gotraja Sapindas, and as such they are entitled to inherit as collaterals, and are to be preferred to male Gotrajas, in a more remote line. This recognition of widows of Sapindas as heirs in Bombay Presidency, is recognised by the Privay Council in Lallubhai v. Mankuyarbai. L. R. 7 I.A. 212. This right of a widow of a Gotraja Sapindas appears to have been taken away by the new Bill. The reason given in both the above cases is unanimity. We feel, there can be no justification for depriving females of Western India, of the right which they have been enjoying for immemorable time, only for the sake of achieving unanimity. It can as well be achieved by enabling females in the other parts of India to come in line with those in Western India. We are sure they would certainly welcome this innovation.

We ardently hope that the above suggestions will receive careful consideration before the final draft of the Bill by the Select Committee.

IV

Memorandum submitted to the Joint Committee by the Bhatia Stri Mandal, Bombay.

1. The Bill proposes to make for the first time in Hindu the daughter or daughters of a Hindu dying intestate as simultaneous heirs along with the son or sons and widow of a deceased in respect of heritable property of a deceased Hindu.

2. Just as in a joint and undivided Hindu family, the Karta of the family has no right, without legal necessity, or in cases where such a Karta happens to be a father for payment of antecedent debts, to dispose off immovable property belonging to the said joint family, on that analogy, we suggest that when the daughter is given a right to inherit along with her brothers and mother (viz., the sons and widow respectively of the deceased), the interest which would devolve on the daughter, should be subject to the restriction that in respect of immovable property the daughter cannot make a Will or without legal necessity dispose of the immovable property during her lifetime and that on her death, such estate, immovable and moveable or such part thereof out of the estate inherited by her from her father as remain at the time of her death, shall devolve upon her children (sons and daughters, married or unmarried, equally) and in case there are no children surviving the said deceased daughter the above estate immovable and movable shall devolve upon the brothers (including the children and/or widow, if any, of a predeceased brother living at the time of the death of the said deceased daughter).

3. The above restrictions as to the nature and character of the inheritance that comes to a daughter would ensure that the daughter does not waste or spend away, without legal necessity, the inheritance thus received by her and further that her husband and his people would not be able to bring any coercion or pressure upon the said daughter to make available her inheritance for the benefit of the husband or his people. But for the restriction suggested it would be difficult for a wife to withstand or oppose the pressure or coercion from her husband or his people, and thus marital bliss would be seriously embarrassed and disturbed.

4. It seems clear that a son, a son's son and a son's son's son inheriting as one of the simultaneous heirs would as between himself and his sons take such heritable property with all incidents applicable to joint family property. If the existence of a son is not considered as an impediment sufficient to enlarge the character of the estate received by male heirs we do not think the suggested limitation in the case of widows or daughters aforesaid in the character of her estate is unreasonable, otherwise the Bill as it is at present framed gives larger rights to females succeeding as simultaneous heirs to those given to males.

5. Suggestion made in some quarters that any opposition to this Bill classed as conservative and that it is akin to opposition to the evil system of "Suttee" is hardly convincing besides being irrelevant.

6. We do not approve of the exclusion of the right of a sonless son's widow to inherit as a simultaneous heir according to Deshmukh's Bill. The suggestion in some quarters that a father is likely to take care of a daughter is one which creates an apprehension about a son's widow (daughter-in-law) being excluded in a Will and her right should therefore be retained. Her character of the estate may be in the same footing as that of a widow.

7. It should be further provided that upon "Conversion" of a widow of a predeceased son or the widow of a predeceased son's predeceased son or daughter, married or unmarried, to a non-Hindu faith, her right to inherit as a simultaneous heir with her brothers and mother (i.e., the sons and widow respectively of the deceased Hindu) shall be lost as if she is civilly dead, otherwise it would be a dangerous and unworkable proposition that when the inheritance opens if a daughter and particularly a married daughter, has converted herself from the Hindu faith, still she, by legislation, be given a right to inherit along with her husband, brothers and mother. There is a strong feeling amongst us that this enlargement of rights to be given to Hindu females by recognising them as simultaneous heirs should be co-extensive with her remaining in the creed of Hinduism. The Caste disabilities Act should therefore be made not to be applicable in case of the widows and daughters aforesaid inheriting as simultaneous heirs.

8. The extent of the estate, that is given to the daughter, viz., half that of a son should be reduced in the case of a married daughter to one-fourth instead of half. Whereas an unmarried daughter would require marriage expenses and her maintenance to be met, a married daughter would not need the above facilities and would at the same time be entitled as a member of her husband's family to be maintained and to inherit. It is reasonable that her share should be substantially less than that of an unmarried daughter, we suggest one-fourth that of a son.

9. Section 5: Enumerated heirs.—The Bill proposes to postpone the mother and father of a deceased Hindu to clause 2 and wants to introduce the son's daughter and the daughter's daughter as preferential heirs being Nos. 3 and 4 in clause 1. This is very unsatisfactory and unfair. For illustration, let us imagine a case of a daughter's daughter inheriting the estate of a deceased Hindu in preference to the mother or father of the deceased. If the daughter's daughter is of the age of 18 we can easily visualise the age of the mother or the father of the deceased to be not less than about 70. The proposed Bill would give the whole of the estate absolutely to the daughter's daughter who is 18 in our example and would leave the aged mother and father who would be 70 years old or over to be maintained by that daughter's daughter. This would be a most ridiculous proposition.

10. It appears that in the present law after the amendment brought about by the Deshmukh's Act, a widow of a predeceased son or a widow of a predeceased grandson of a predeceased father inherits together with the widow of the deceased in the Bill this right of the widow has been taken away, whilst introducing the daughter as simultaneous heir. This would lead to considerable hardship in the case of such widows of predeceased son or grandson. Their right to inherit should be retained as it is at present.

11. Re. Section 2, Sub-Clause (2), Sub-Clause (2)(b).—This should be made by an exhaustive definition that for the purpose of determining the classification in which a female heir falls in case of inheritance on intestacy a woman is to be treated as if she was an Agnate of her father and his Agnates; otherwise considerable confusion is likely to arise; since the principles of the change of Gotra by marriage of Hindu woman would be seriously offended and we do not think legislation should or can satisfactorily or effectively bring about a change in the principles relating to religion, usage and personal law of a people. We can appreciate that it may be necessary for conciseness and to avoid considerable details which would be otherwise necessary for describing the various heirs that an artificial definition should be incorporated and in the circumstances this should be made very clear. The clause as provided does not make it clear since it merely says "a woman shall be deemed".

12. Re. Sections 12 and 13.—The rights over Stridhan should not be changed but should be allowed to remain as they are under the present Hindu Law. By its very nature, Stridhan property of a Hindu woman is meant for being used in case of extreme need or urgency equivalent to legal necessity and the law should not permit her to deprive herself of that benefit by giving her an absolute right to dispose of the same during her lifetime without legal necessity. So also, amongst the heirs upon whom the Stridhan of a Hindu woman should devolve, since now under the proposed Bill, the daughter is being made an heir jointly with her brother, in fairness a corresponding provision should be made that amongst the Stridhan heirs the daughter and sons of a deceased Hindu woman shall be joint heirs.

V

POINTS.

1. Competency of the legislature to legislate in respect of religious matters.

2. Time inopportune—world war suspension of Constitution in most of the provinces—great economic distress—not a proper time for controversial legislation.

3. Procedure adopted not satisfactory—Committee appointed for suggesting amendments to Act XVIII of 1937 as would resolve the doubts, clarify the nature of the right of the widow, and remove any injustice that might have been done to the daughter—Committee points out at least 15 items of defect in 1937 Act—recommends drafting complete Hindu Code after survey of whole field—first instalment of proposed Code circulated to certain selected lawyers and some other persons—neither answers to original questionnaire issued by Committee, nor opinions received after first draft of the Bill made public—only material explanatory note and memoranda.

Bengal affected most by Bill—no proper publication—Calcutta Gazette, 18th June, 1942, in English—no publication in Bengali or even precis prepared for general information—Bengal Government asked in July different persons and bodies to submit opinions by 15th August, 1942, on two Bills, Inheritance and Marriage—India Government fixed 15th September, 1942, as last date for Provincial Government—even now copies of the Bill not available to persons except in Gazette—time allowed for submitting opinion wholly insufficient—many individuals and bodies failed to submit opinions within time.

Even now attempt should be made to have larger Committee representing adequately regional and sectional views professing different shades of opinion to visit the more important places affected by Bill, specially Bengal—appreciation of local or sectional problems and opinion absolutely necessary—such procedure would ease public anxiety and minimise opposition to final recommendation made after due consideration of details.

4. Though Bill aims at uniformity result otherwise—one law for non-agricultural lands, another for agricultural—expectation that provinces will pass similar laws wholly improbable—quite likely particular province or provinces may not accept Bill as drafted for agricultural lands.

One law for Mitakshara coparcenary and special systems in vogue on the Eastern Coast as also Rule of Primogeniture allowed to continue.

Bengal treated differently from rest of India—ancestral or coparcenary property not affected by Bill, but ancestral and joint properties under Dayabhag affected—same person will be governed by different laws in respect of different properties—chance of litigation or compelling persons to execute wills—highly undesirable in a country like India.

Owing to suspension of Constitution in various parts, expression of opinion in Local legislature impossible—Local Acts for agricultural lands ought not to be Governor's Acts.

5. Whether proposal in effect piecemeal legislation—Committee definitely against piecemeal legislation—recommend survey of whole field and draft, if not complete Code, at least those branches necessarily affected—delayed reform better than piecemeal legislation to be amended every few years—women's organisations ask for further revision of entire law—need for comprehensive co-ordinated solution rather than quick remedies (Report, pp. 12-13).

Some items of co-related and dependent subject matters—succession to shebaiti right governed by ordinary rule of succession—sheba-puja of family deity to be considered—law relating to debuttar estate to be considered before laying down rules of Inheritance.

Law of maintenance to be settled simultaneously with laws of Inheritance.

Legitimate kinship to be decided upon along with the law of marriage—question of Anulom, Pratilom, Sagotra marriages.

Proposal for placing son whether divided, undivided or re-united in the same category cannot be considered without taking into account the law of partition and re-union.

Proposal for placing adopted sons of different classes in same category—effect of giving absolute estates to the simultaneous heirs on the law of Adoption—vesting and divesting of properties on adoption—law of inheritance and law of adoption to be considered together.

Proposal for merging Dayabhag and Mitakshara in one mould and introducing new provisions affect the law of joint family—implications to be considered along with the law of joint family.

If Hindu Law to be codified—still possible to prepare a draft, if not of complete Code of co-related subjects.

6. Whether Dayabhag and Mitakshara can or should be substituted by one common Code—Committee's view not abolition of school, but uniformity where possible, divergent where inevitable—Committee's ideal of uniformity not achieved, diversity still continuing—fundamental points different between Dayabhag and Mitakshara, not idiosyncratic but having historical, economic and sociological background—even if it be possible to unify sub-schools under Mitakshara, Dayabhag cannot be wholly merged with Mitakshara, neither necessary nor desirable,—peculiar problems in Bengal—individuality developed during centuries not to be destroyed. Compare position in U. S. A.—deviation from the then British practice largest in matter of inheritance—each State determines its own laws of inheritance—result dissimilar laws in different States—Indian Constitution destined to be Federal—attempt introduction uniformity throughout India at this stage not desirable.

7. Religious basis of law should not be abolished—dangerous to introduce new rules principally on supposed grounds of justice and equity—except very small section of urban population life of every Hindu still influenced by and permeated with religious ideals and ceremonies—what appears now to be just and equitable to some bound to be modified with the change in the personnel of persons in authority—Hindu Law principally a matter for Hindus—what majority of Hindus think proper should be accepted—social and religious law not to be a pawn of politics, but to be approached from a different angle—social laws specially rules of inheritance not to be the subject-matter of constant experiments by successive legislators.

8. Social and economic consideration not to be overlooked—entire structure of Hindu society and legal system based on family as unit—law to be propounded to keep up that principle—legislature to be very careful, if any proposal affects the family as unit.

Without considering whether absolute estate to the family heirs supported by original texts or necessary from the present day circumstances, the economic factor to be considered.

Every Hindu in Bengal affected by Bill—at least 75 per cent. dependent on agriculture—agricultural lands now excluded from Bill, only the separate residential houses come under the Bill—according to Floud Commission Report, each family has about 4 acres of land including agricultural lands. Giving absolute estate to women mean disintegration of family property—daughter married in another family can have no possibility of residing in a portion of the father's residential house—result sale of that share to outsider, ultimately leading to partition of the small holding—very difficult for poor people to purchase daughter's share—similarly, widow being given absolute estate, chance of that share going to her father's family, if she is childless or if she has a daughter, that share going to her as Stridhan.

Position of unmarried daughter or daughter-in-law may be made definite as in the Shastras.

Position of women in India not same as in England, where large percentage remains unmarried up to comparatively older age—in England 98 per cent. at 20, 75 per cent. at 25, 43, per cent. at 30 and 27 per cent. at 35 are unmarried.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I am strongly of opinion that in the interest of peace and harmony of all concerned apostasy from religion should be made a disqualification for inheritance. Consequently a Hindu who abandons the Hindu religion or a female Hindu who marries a non-Hindu should be disqualified from inheritance. I, therefore, disagree with the majority who consider that apostasy should not be a ground of disqualification.,

SOBHA SINGH.

I am of the opinion that as the Bill deals with the law of intestate succession, it should be complete by itself. Hindu opinion is strongly against an apostate inheriting property. Section 20 which refers to disqualifications from succeeding to any property should therefore be complete by itself by referring to apostasy as one of the disqualifications. This would necessitate repeal of the Caste Disabilities Removal Act. I disagree with the view taken by some of my colleagues that the position established by the Caste Disabilities Act should not be disturbed.

The Bill has undergone many important changes and so I am of the opinion that the Bill be sent for republication and recirculation.

GOVIND V. DESHMUKH.

The 24th August, 1943.

I am against disintegration of Hindu Society. The traditional status and position of the Hindu family must be maintained. With that view I am against much fragmentation of the corpus of the family property. The report aims at bringing on a par with ingredients of Mohamedan Law and Indian Succession Act with those of Hindu Law but the conditions and circumstances of those societies differ vitally.

(a) I would not give a simultaneous share to a married daughter in the parental property. Under the present system she is much better provided for, by her parents and the love lost is mutually retained. Taking away a share to a different family would entail a lot of litigation and bad blood. Rau Committee agreed with this view but changed it for no substantial reasons.

(b) There may be rare cases of unmarried girls not provided for their unkeep and marriage expenses by the parental family. Thus there arises no necessity of giving her a separate share. But if that is done at all, her share should be ¼ of the son's share and not ½.

(c) I am in favour of some provision being made for the widow of predeceased son provided she remains chaste. Her share should be ¼ of a son's share and not ½.

(d) I am not in favour of giving a share to a divided son, unless the father has so desired.

(e) If all these fragmentations are allowed, I am in favour of giving 1/8 share of a son, to the father and mother, respectively.

(f) I object to the Act being applied to agricultural land in the centrally administered areas. That will be against the scope of the Bill and the clear provision in clause 3 Proviso (i) with which the Bill was committed to the Select Committee, especially when the views of those areas are not obtained on this point.

(g) I would not include the property acquired by a woman by inheritance or at a partition of the family property or in lieu of maintenance or purchased with her husband's funds, as Stridhana. That would amount to making no difference between ordinary heritable property and Stridhana. If this is done the Stridhana property should devolve as much upon the son as his sister and not half as much as his sister.

(h) I don't agree with the view that the question of option being given to the male heir to purchase immoveable property inherited along with the male heir on her deciding to dispose of it, should be left out from finding its place in this Bill; when the report concedes that the legal option should be given.

(i) In my opinion time has not yet arrived to deviate from the reasoned traditional impropriety, of granting to women an absolute estate. If the western wave of the women wishing to stand on their own is not reasonably obstructed in India, for preserving family system, time may arrive to yield to this demand. If, however, this provision is made law, it should be subject to a proviso that the estate will be absolute only when there is no son, son's son or a son of a son's son with the object of keeping the nucleus of the family property intact.

(j) Apostasy should be made a disqualification to inheritance, and the Caste Disabilities Removal Act, 1850, should be repealed by this Bill. Apostasy in Mohammadan Shariat Law is also a disqualification and that community should have no objection in joining hands to repeal the aforesaid Act by providing its repeal in the schedule attached to the Bill repealing other enactments.

(k) The Bill has been drastically changed and in view of the several important points having been dealt with by the Select Committee, the Bill must be republished and circulated to elicit public opinion.

LALCHAND NAVALRAI.

The 22nd August, 1943.

I regret I cannot sign along with those who agree to sign the report of the Joint Committee on the "amendment and codification of the Hindu Law of Intestate Succession",as it has emanated from the Joint Select Committee. I regret further that I cannot join with those who want to send the report of the same to be republished, which means delaying tactics to undo the work. Having disagreement with both I have to submit my own notes on the matter separately.

Referring to the first page of the report I very reluctantly have to submit my differences. I do not think that Mr. Joshi had rendered the Joint Committee any appreciable help as an adviser. Our worthy Chairman might have chosen him to be a witness instead of an adviser. Sir B. L. Mitter,

In clause 20, no decision having arrived at—is left open—therefore it is incomplete. Regarding apostasy and inheritance by remarried females—opinions are sharply divided.

Regarding the opinions placed before the Committee members—it must be confessed that they are neither sufficiently large in number, nor very clear. More clear and numerous opinion could have been more helpful.

Now that by majority it has been decided that the Bill as has emanated from the Joint Select Committee be republished, I feel inclined to observe that simply by republication matters would not improve as people generally are indifferent. I would suggest that the Joint Select Committee be turned into a Commission of enquiry as has been done in the matter of the "Sarda Bill". While this Commission would be engaged in enquiries in the Provinces, a fresh Rau Committee or a Committee like the Rau Committee could be set up to go over the other Departments of Hindu Law and that the whole of the Bill might be examined together and might be passed into an Act by April 1946. This procedure could sufficiently set at rest all controversies regarding adequate publicity and discussion. Simple republication would be useless.

I believe the Hon'ble the Law Member, the Leader of the House and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General would sit together to give these suggestions a shape immediately after the 15th October and continue the work till the whole of Hindu Law would be ready for codification.

AMARENDRA NATH CHATTOPADHYAYA.

DELHI:
The 31st August 1943.

I regret I cannot accept the view of some of the Hon'ble Members of the Committee that there ought to be no codification of the Hindu Law. I think a machinery should be set up which should examine the Hindu Law in all its branches and come to definite conclusions. For this purpose a committee consisting of the best Hindu Lawyers in India who have studied the Hindu Law from the Vedic and the Shastric point of view should be constituted. This committee may also include on its personnel some reformers who want to modernise the Hindu Law but they must also be those who have made deep study of the Hindu Law. Besides I am of the opinion that this committee be not set up immediately until the Legislature in Provinces begin to function; and they also agree to the codification of the Hindu Law. This is very necessary because under the Government of India Act of 1935, it is the Provincial Legislature who have the power to legislate about the agricultural land. I know the task is stupendous one but it has to be taken up sooner or later. My object in having the Hindu Law codified is to guide the courts in British India to administer and to interpret the Hindu Law uniformly and properly.

The Bill before us seeks to give legal effect to the following three principles:—

I. Abolition of the several systems of succession and a provision for a common law of intestate succession for all Hindus in British India.

II. Removal of sex disqualification so far as inheritance of the property of intestate is concerned.

III. Abolition of Hindu woman's limited interest and giving absolute rights of property to the women over all inherited estate.

For the present I do not agree with first principle noted above. This will be a piece-meal legislation, and instead of doing good to the Hindu society, it will do harm by creating bad blood by a legislation of this nature only.

As regards the second point, namely, the removal of sex disqualification no Vedic or Shastric authority has been cited either by the Rau Committee or by the supporters of this Bill to carry conviction that the women can become simultaneous heirs in the matter of inheritance to the property. On the other hand some Vedic and Shastric authorities were cited to us by two witnesses before the Committee. But these authorities were ignored by the supporters of the Bill.

It is noteworthy that even the British Courts while administering the Hindu Law, during the last one and a half century, in a liberal manner, dared not interpret it without the Vedic or Shastric sanctions. If therefore the reformers desire to effect a change in the fundamentals of the Hindu Law they should openly state that they want to bring about a change whether there is any Vedic or Shastric sanction for such a change or not.

Moreover when a female is married in another family she becomes a "Gotraja" of her husband's family and loses all her interests in her father's family.

I therefore do not agree with the view of some of my colleagues that the females should be simultaneous heirs with the males; because it is the male heirs on whom the religious and secular responsibility of the maintenance of the family traditions devolve.

As regards the third point, namely, the removal of ban on the widows inheriting absolute interest in the estate, I have to say, that it is a logical corollary of the second principle mentioned above. In my opinion a female is not entitled to an absolute interest in an inherited estate, as she has no liability or responsibility to discharge. According to shastras a male is entitled to perform the "Shradha" ceremony of the deceased to the exclusion of the female and so it naturally follows that the male heirs should succeed to the property of a deceased excluding the female heirs. The female heirs are entitled to maintenance according to the status of the family and as such they can be given some share in the property of the deceased with limited interest, which interest will, on her death, devolve on the heirs of the deceased.

I therefore hold the view that for the reasons stated above, a female should have only a limited interest in the property of the deceased.

Before I examine some of the important clauses of the Bill, I feel compelled to make a general observation.

In recommending the revolutionary changes in the Hindu Law of succession the Rau Committee have shown lack of grasp of the fundamentals on which the Hindu Society is based. It is generally recognised that law of succession is closely inter-related to the law of marriage. The prohibited degrees in marriage is peculiar to the Hindu society. Consequently the Hindu law of succession, prohibiting women from absolute interest, is unique in the world. The prohibition of marriage, within certain degrees, has the sanction of Hindu religion behind it and any violation of this injunction is looked upon with contempt in the society. Therefore in my view a legislature has no right to enact a law of inheritance which is against the religious, moral and eugenic ideals of the society.

EXAMINATION OF CLAUSES.

Definitions.—'Stridhan': I do not agree with the definition of 'Stridhan' as put in the Bill by the Joint Committee. 'Stridhan' means ornaments, clothes, utensils, and other gifts given to female at the time of her marriage or after marriage, by parents and other near relatives. Under this Bill it includes property acquired by women by inheritance or otherwise from a male or a female. In my opinion 'Stridhan' should not include property inherited by females from male heirs.

Clause 5.—Simultaneous heirs: I have already stated above that the females cannot be simultaneous heirs with males and as such the daughter should not be a simultaneous heir with the son in inheriting the property of an intestate. But as the Select Committee decided to make daughter a simultaneous heir with the son, I was induced to agree to the view that the parents and widowed daughter-in-law who are dependent on the intestate should also be simultaneous heirs. In my opinion adequate provision should be made for the maintenance of the above-mentioned persons which will be legally binding on the intestate's heirs. Provision should also be made for the maintenance and marriage of the unmarried daughters.

Heirs, Class I.—If the right to maintenance has to be safeguarded as has been done in the case of the widow and the widowed daughter-in-law in Act XVIII of 1937 as amended by Act XI of 1938 or the marriage and education of unmarried girls is to be similarly provided for, all this may be done by a careful adjustment between provision and maintenance on the one side and inheritance on the other. Yet in no case the family property should be allowed to disintegrate into bits. Women therefore should enjoy limited life interest in property inherited in this way.

Clause 13.—'Stridhan Property'.—I have indicated above that in my opinion 'Stridhan' should not include property inherited whether from the father's side or the husband's side. No confusion arises if such inherited property involves woman's limited estate, ultimately to come to the intestate's next male heir.

Succession to a woman's 'Stridhan' would vary as the intestate was married or unmarried, and according as she was married in an approved or unapproved form. A maiden's property, according to all schools, passes in the following order and the same be continued:—

1. Uterine brother;
2. Mother;
3. Father;
4. Father's heirs in propinquity;
5. Kinsmen of the deceased herself, that is, her mother's heirs in order of propinquity.

Other kinds of 'Stridhan' should pass as follows:—

1. Unmarried daughter;
2. Married daughter who is unprovided for;
3. Married daughter who is provided for and son simultaneously;
4. Daughter's son or daughter's daughter and son's son simultaneously.
5. Husband.

Clause 20.—Apostasy: It is essential that the abandonment of religion and conversion from Hindu religion to another religion must be made a ground for disqualification.

As the Joint Committee has made important changes and decided to republish and circulate the Bill for eliciting public opinion, I do not desire to dwell upon other clauses of the Bill.

Before I close, I regret, I have to note about the irregularity of the proceedings of the Joint Select Committee. One member of the Rau Committee who was with us as an adviser actually took part in the deliberations as a full fledged member of the Committee except that he did not vote.

Secondly, the convention that has been so far observed in the Central Legislature, that the members of the other community should not take sides in the measures, relating to the personal law of their sister community, was broken in the deliberations of the Committee by the Muslim members.

NEW DELHI; V. V. KALIKAR.

The 1st September, 1943.

I strongly protest against any social legislation being enacted in these abnormal times and specially when the majority of the Hindu elected members are not attending the Central Assembly. It does not lie in the mouth of persons whose very existence in the Legislature depend on the pleasure of the Bureaucracy to say that they represent the Congress point of view and Congress Party would have supported them had that Party been present in the Assembly. And even if there is any substance in their claim, what will there be if they wait for that Party to come in and do not pass a legislation which affects the Hindus and their social and economic structure most vitally in such unseemly hurry. Besides at the present moment the whole attention of the people as well as the Government should be to ameliorate the food situation in the country and to alleviate the miseries and sufferings of the people. The Bill affects the Bengali Hindus more than anybody else and public opinion in Bengal has condemned the proposed legislation in no uncertain terms. The condemnation would have been stronger if the Bill was circulated and if the people of Bengal were not living in close proximity to the war zone and also faced with the severest famine since the days of the East India Company. These factors alone are strong and sufficient to deter the Government from proceeding with a social legislation which affects the Hindus not only of the present time but the future generations to come. The Bengal Legislative Council has very appropriately passed a resolution that the consideration of the Bill should be postponed till after the war. One of the aims of the Bill is said to be to embody a Common Law of Intestate Succession for all Hindus in British India. That aim remains unfulfilled as the ancestral properties of persons governed by the Mitakshara school remain untouched by the Bill and only the separate property (which is practically negligible) of a person governed by the said school is included in it. The properties of persons governed by the Marumakkattayam, Aliyasantar or Nambudri Law of inheritance are also excluded. Then again, the agricultural properties in Governor's Provinces have also been left out for obvious reasons as they are not within the jurisdiction of the Central Legislature. And it is almost certain as can be ascertained from the opinions received, that many of the Provinces will refuse to pass any complementary legislation in respect of the agricultural properties.

Many of the clauses in the Bill have been passed in the Joint Committee through the help of non-Hindu votes. Would the Muslims like a Bill affecting their community to be passed with the help of non-Muslim votes?

The proceedings of the Committee have been wholly irregular as Mr. Joshi a member of the Rau Committee took part in the deliberations of the Joint Committee throughout and was allowed to examine and cross-examine all the witnesses who appeared before the Committee in spite of protests from some of us. There were other outsiders also who were present during the Committee meetings on some days or other.

It is undesirable that a social legislation affecting one particular community should be in charge of a member not belonging to that community, who, however well intentioned he may be, is likely to be misinterpreted and misunderstood by the community such affected.

It is very much to be regretted that copies of deposition of witnesses before the Committee were not made available to members of the Committee and no value has been attached to the evidence adduced.

The Honourable mover of the Bill made a statement in the Council of State on the 1st of April, 1943, that he will withdraw the Bill if any Sruti text can be shown against the principles of the Bill. Mr. Ramaprosad Mukherjee, an eminent Advocate of the Calcutta High Court, who gave evidence before the Committee, cited not one but three Sruti texts against the principles laid down in the Bill but that had no effect with the Honourable mover. Even the modest suggestion of Sir Brojendra Mitter, the Advocate General of India, that clause I should be so amended that this legislation even if it is passed should not come into force before the other relevant chapters of Hindu Law are enacted has not been accepted.

The Hindu public opinion has not at all been consulted by the Rau Committee or by the Government and if they do it they will find that opposition to the proposed legislation is of much greater magnitude than they ever imagined.

I am of opinion that the Bill should be re-published and circulated for eliciting public opinion thereon. If the Bill is taken into consideration in spite of what I have stated above, I suggest the following amendments to the different clauses of the Bill:—

Clause 1, sub-clause (4).—It should be so amended that this Act shall not come into force before the whole of the Hindu Law is codified and enacted.

Clause 2, sub-clause (d) and the Illustration thereunder.—It should be so amended as to exclude the Dayabhaga School from it.

Clause 2, sub-clause (h).—It should be so amended that property acquired by a woman by inheritance or devise (except an absolute devise) or at a partition is excluded from the definition of 'Stridhana".

Clause 3.—It should be amended and the word "Dayabhaga" be added before the word "Marumakkattayam" in the third line of the said clause.

Clause 5, Class I (1).—The word "unmarried" be added before the word "daughter" in the first line.

Clause 5, Class I (4).—As daughter's daughter is not considered at present an heir under Hindu Law, she should be removed from here and placed in Class II after brother's son's son.

Clause 7, sub-clause (d).—It should be deleted and the sentence "Each of the Intestate's unmarried daughter shall take one-fourth share to that of a son" be substituted in its place and the Illustrations be amended accordingly.

Clause 12.—A woman should have a limited interest over properties inherited by her. It should be so specially in the case of a childless widow as otherwise she is likely to take away the property to her father's family or if she chooses to re-marry to her newly married husband's family.

Clause 13, sub-clause (b).—(8) and (9) should interchange places.

Clause 18.—Paragraph 2 beginning with the word "Provided" be deleted.

Clause 20.—Apostasy should be made a disqualification and the clause should be amended accordingly.

The Schedule.—It should be amended and "The Caste Disabilities Removal Act" of 1850 be included herein.

SUSIL KUMAR ROY CHOWDHURY.

There are many provisions of the Bill which I cannot support. But as the Joint Committee has recommended republication and recirculation of the Bill, no useful purpose would be served by a detailed examination and criticism at this stage. Suffice it to say that I am opposed to some of the proposed amendments upon the general principles governing the Hindu Law of Succession as also upon economic grounds.

A. C. DATTA.

In connection with clause 5, the use of the word "important" to qualify the changes that have been made in regard to simultaneous heirs is not, in our opinion, justified. We dissent from the view that the changes made in Clause 5 of the Bill or for the matter of that in any other clause are of such an important or fundamental character as to justify the recommendation that the Bill should be republished or recirculated. The main principles of the Bill, as we understand them, are (1) that there should be a uniform code of succession for all Hindus in British India, (2) the removal of the sex-disqualification for inheritance, and (3) the abolition of the limited estate for women; and we would point out that none of these principles have been abrogated or modified in the Bill. In Clause 5, to the simultaneous heirs as originally contemplated by the Bill as referred to, we have added Parent if dependant upon the deceased and the widowed daughter-in-law. The inclusion of the widowed daughter-in-law was left an open question by the Rau Committee. It was considered by them and supported by many persons who were consulted by them. Some of the organisations and individuals who sent their opinions had strongly urged that Parent, if dependant upon the deceased should be moved up from class (ii) to class (i), in Clause 5, and thus made simultaneous heirs. The addition of these heirs cannot be described as constituting important changes. We are therefore strongly opposed to the republication motion. We may mention that the addition of the Son as an heir to the Stridhan of the Mother in Clause 13 is not, in our opinion, a change which radically alters the Bill. It is necessary corollary to the principle that sex-disqualification should disappear.

P. N. SAPRU.
H. N. KUNZRU.
RENUKA RAY (MRS.).
S. N. MAHTHA.
G. B. NAIRANG.
H. IMAM.

We dissent from the opinion expressed in the Report that "the Hindu Law Committee should be resuscitated to encourage the formulation and enactment of the remaining parts of the projected Code" as the experience of the last Hindu Law Committee (known as the Rau Committee) does not justify such resuscitation at all. The Rau Committee produced only two Bills, the Hindu Intestate Succession Bill and the Hindu Marriage Bill. Both these Bills in the name of codification and uniformity seek to make revolutionary changes in the very principles of the social order of the Hindus in utter disregard of their age-long traditions. Their proposals if accepted would lead to the disruption of Hindu families and to the disintegration of their family property without any compensating advantages. We hold that codification will make Hindu Law rigid, stereotyped and stagnant. Its process of ever absorbing new entrants into the Hindu fold will be stopped. The picture that Rau Committee has drawn of codified Hindu Law as simple, easily intelligible and capable of being translated into vernaculars for the edification of all Hindus has no relation to realities. Perhaps the Bill under our consideration is the most effective repudiation of the theory of a simple Code.

To draft simple Code of Hindu Law is an almost impossible task. No reason has been advanced why the Government has changed the stand it took up when the question of codification of Hindu Law was under debate in the Legislative Assembly in 1921. The Rau Committee can be no substitute for the machinery that the Government then though necessary for the carrying out of the stupendous task. It is not only more stupendous to-day in the midst of the most gigantic struggle in world's history, but the Central Legislature now has not got the powers which it had in 1921. It is necessary now to go to the Provincial Legislatures (many of which are not even functioning to-day) to get supplementary legislation passed with regard to "Agricultural Land" which constitutes the bulk of the heritable property in the country. It is putting the cart before the horse to ask the Central Legislature to enact laws without being assured of the support of Provincial Legislatures beforehand. And if such support be forthcoming from the Provinces action should first be taken under Section 103 of the Constitution Act, under which the Central Legislature may be given full powers to enact complete laws for all kinds of properties in British India, both agricultural and non-agricultural.

The Bill before us seeks to give legal effect to the following three principles:—

(1) Abolition of the several systems of succession obtaining under different schools of Hindu Law and provision for a common law of Intestate Succession for all Hindus in British India.

(2) Removal of sex-disqualification by which Hindu Women in general have hitherto been precluded from inheriting property in various parts of India.

(3) Abolition of Hindu Women's limited estate and giving absolute rights of property to women over all inherited estate.

I. We are unable to accept any one of the above principles. The first one, so far as simplicity is concerned, is impossible of achievement as just indicated. Different schools of law are in vogue in different parts of India. Differences like those between Mitakshara and Dayabhag schools are sometimes fundamental. They have historical, economic and sociological back-ground. They cannot wholly be merged into one another. Such merger, moreover, is neither necessary nor desirable. Peculiar problems in Bengal necessitated the Dayabhag school of law. It has not been accepted in other parts of India in course of Centuries. Nor could Mitakshara with its complete sway in most other parts of India could encroach upon Bengal. Both the schools have developed their individuality sometimes exclusive of each other. It is not easy to achieve any organic synthesis, which may be acceptable to the Hindus all over India. Any mechanical bleeding may be disastrous.

The proposed law will mostly affect Bengal, Assam and certain portions of Orissa governed by the Dayabhag school of law. The other Provinces where the Mitakshara law prevails will not be so much affected. The separate property which is included in this Bill of a person governed by the Mitakshara law is practically negligible. The ancestral properties are not affected as they pass by survivorship as distinct from inheritance.

On a reference by the Governor General of India the Federal Court has held that "succession" in the list III of the 7th Schedule of the Constitution Act, includes survivorship. This Bill excludes from its operation coparcenary properties governed by the Mitakshara law. After their exclusion it is absurd to say that the Bill gives a common Law of Succession to the whole of British India.

The proposed provisions, therefore, will not achieve uniformity inspite of the radical changes it will introduce. This Bill completely justifies the opinion expressed by John Mayne on the question. That great jurist regarded codification of Hindu Law as a miracle. He said, "The age of miracles has passed and I hardly expect to see a code of Hindu Law which will satisfy the trader and the agriculturist, the Punjabi and the Bengali and the Pandits of Benares, Rameswaram, of Amritsar and of Poona.

But, I can imagine a very beautiful and specious code, which should produce much more dissatisfaction and expense than the law as at present administered." With unconscious humour the Rau Committee quotes this very passage in its report. (Page 12.)

II. As to the second question, viz., the so-called removal of sex-disqualification our dissent is most emphatic. That women are considered of less importance than men in the matter of inheritance in Hindu society is not sex-disqalification, as such. But apart from this big sociological question let us consider Shastric authorities on the subject. Our colleagues also ostensibly rely on them, though we have not been shown any authoritative text from the Shastras which supports inheritance by women in the way provided for in the Bill. Mr. Joshi, one of the members of the Rau Committee, sat on the Joint Committee, acted as if he were a member of it without a vote and was allowed to examine and cross-examine all the witnesses who gave evidence before the Committee (we do not know under what rules he did so inspite of protests from some members of the Joint Committee). He also could not help us in the matter. He could not translate and explain Shastric texts even in non-Vedic Sanskrit when requested to do so. It is indeed very daring to assert as has been done in the report that "It must be premised, and all the scholars agree, that most of the vast Vedic literature has been lost—little remain in it of positive law". We do not understand how the absence of authority, for whatever reason it may be, can itself be an authority. The authority of many relevant texts has been ignored with this remark—"Reliance is placed upon other passages also which have not been referred to by any law-giver". If reference to it by a law-giver is to be the criterion of a passage being an authority our colleagues will find themselves is a quandry. For both this report and the report of the Rau Committee almost entirely depend on Quotations of Jaimini and Savarswami, of which no mention has ever been made by any law-giver.

We are constrained to say that the interpretation put on several texts by the Rau Committee and our colleagues is not correct. The interpretation of Manu (IX. 130) given in Rau Committee's Report (page 15) is obviously misleading, for it refers to an appointed daughter, who is brotherless, and who thus takes the place of a son and is by her own son meant to perpetuate her father's line. Dr. Dwarakanath Mitter, another member of the Rau Committee, has quoted Jaimini and Savarswami in his book "Position of women in Hindu Law". One fails to find reference to inheritance in all that he quotes. He evidently twists interpretation of the texts to suit his preconceived theory profounded in his thesis. The Rau Committee also failed to take into consideration that simultaneous heirship of the daughter with the son is expressly forbidden by the Vedas (Rigveda Samhita III. 31, 2 and Nirukta III, 6). It is regrettable that neither Professor Deshpande, with his erudite knowledge of Dharmashastra both Vedic and non-Vedic nor Mr. Ramaprosad Mukherjee, the well known advocate, and the robust representative of the Brahman Saha, both of whom placed before the Joint Committee irrefutable Shastric Texts, including Texts from Shrutis, to prove conclusively that females cannot inherit in the presence of males, could make any impression on our colleagues, i.e., the majority in our Committee including amongst them the four non-Hindu members.

In the opinion of our colleagues, to give the right of inheritance to women is advancement as it is progress towards removal of sex disqualification. But advancement is a relative term. They forget that Hindu society is based on the patrilineal family from the Vedic times. It is the man who has the obligation to continue the line by setting up and maintaining the family. The woman has no such responsibility. If she gets any money or property she gets it only for enjoyment. There cannot be any rights without relative duties and responsibilities. Even Rau Committee in their Report (page 15) state that "under Hindu Law the son is under a legal obligation to maintain, amongst others, his aged parents, while a daughter is not.". But it will be seen that under the provisions of this Bill, a daughter will inherit from her father, from her father-in-law and from her husband without any responsibility but to use and enjoy the property herself as she likes; the son will have to share his father's estate with his mother, sister, widowed sister-in-law and dependent parents of his father and will be exclusively burdened with the responsibility of continuing the line and maintaining his paternal family. This is really removal of sex-disqualification with vengeance! Apart from Shastric Injunctions, equity and justice demand that the daughter should not be simultaneous heir with the son.

Another very important consideration in this connection should not be lost sight of. The paramount consideration in any change of law of succession should be the general desire of the property owners about the way in which their property should be devolved after their death. The law of succession was changed in England by the law of Property Act, 1925. The Government Spokesmen, Sir Leslie Scott, the then Solicitor General, emphasised that the change in the law was in conformity with the general desire of the property owners as evidenced by the examining of Wills in the Summerset House. The report here gives the list of women's associations who desire the change, but makes no references whatsoever to the general desire of the property owners. The beneficiaries are heard and are being assisted in dividing the booty. But there is no concern about those whose property is to be so mercilessly divided. This is improper method of approach in investigation and the conclusion cannot be just.

III. The third principle, i.e., removal of widow's limited estate is but a corollary from the second one. The widow should not get absolute estate in the property she inherits. It must be remembered that the woman gets the limited estate in lieu of maintenance. It is not inheritance as such. The Rau Committee failed to distinguish between women holding or owning property and women inheriting property. Jaimini and Apastamba speak of women owning and possessing property. But Baudhayan speaks of inheriting it. As a woman has no liability or responsibility to discharge, all that she wants the property for is to maintain herself and so she generally holds it in trust for the next male heir. Property may be allotted even for her upbringing or marriage, but not absolutely. Even where the daughter inherits in the absence of a son, in principle she holds it in trust for her own son.

Reference may be made here to the religious aspect of inheritance. Only those who can offer spiritual benefit to the deceased are entitld to inheritance and as women, even daughters, are not capable of doing so, they cannot claim inheritance and absolute right to property.

Apostasy should be a disqualification to succeed.

In our opinion the Hindu Women's Right to Property Acts of 1937 and 1938 should be repealed as even according to the Rau Comimttee these Acts have proved to be totally unworkable in practice and it has not been easy to interpose the widowed daughter-in-law in the list of heirs. We strongly believe that if interposition of one widowed daughter-in-law has caused so much dislocation in the social order and the scheme of inheritance, this Bill which seeks to make simultaneous heirs of so many relatives including even the daughter in presence of the son and radically changes the order of inheritance is bound to create innumerable difficulties in working.

We regret, we have not been favoured with replies received to the questionnaire and letters issued by the Rau Committee. These papers would have been of great help to us.

Before we examine the Bill clause by clause we feel compelled to make one more general observation. In recommending the revolutionary changes in the Hindu Law of Succession the Rau Committee have shown lack of grasp of the fundamentals on which the Hindu society is based. It is generally recognised that the law of succession is closely interrelated to the law of marriage. The prohibited degrees in marriage recognised and enforced by Hindu Law have no parallel elsewhere in the world, and consequently the Hindu Law of succession interdicting women from inheritance, as such, is unique. The systems of law where prohibited degrees are different, succession by women is possible because property is kept in the family by the marriage of persons in close relationship with each other. For instance, marriage between cousins is allowed and is common in the Christian and Muhammedan societies. Such a marriage is highly incestuous according to Hindu Law and is greatly abhorred by the Hindus. So long as society is based on private property the natural desire, we may say the natural instinct of keeping the property in the family, can not be ignored. It is because the marriage between near relations is prohibited by Hindu Law, that it was necessary to exclude daughters from inheritance as that would have meant property being broken up and portions passing to distant families. The Hindu Law-givers respected the science of eugenics when they laid down the prohibited degrees in marriage. And they respected the property instincts of man when by excluding females from inheritance they provided for the property being kept in the families.

A woman when she marries passes completely out of her father's family and becomes completely merged in her husband's family. Our law-givers who had studied the science of sociology perhaps a little better than our ardent reformers, dictated by the conferences of society ladies, recognised that one of the most potent causes of marital unhappiness was retention of the wife's interest in her father's family. No interest can be of more potent influence than the interest of property. And therefore they provided that a married woman should have, generally speaking, no interest in the paternal property. The Rau Committee have signally failed to view the Hindu Law and Hindu society as a scientific whole and we feel that they are entitled to no commendation in that regard.

Definition.—We do not agree with the definition of "Stridhan" which has been made far too wide. "Stridhan" originally means ornaments, clothes, utensils and gifts given at the time of marriage by parents and other near relations. "Stridhan" under this Bill means all property acquired by a woman by inheritance or otherwise. "Stridhan" should not include property inherited from males.

Clause 5.—Simultaneous Heirs.—We are emphatically of the opinion that daughter should not be a simultaneous heir and that the estate inherited by females should be limited Hindu Women's estate and not absolute estate. We have given our reasons in detail above. Parents should not be included as simultaneous heirs. But adequate provisions legally binding on the intestate's heirs should be made for the maintenance of all whom the intestate was morally bound to maintain, i.e., the widow or widows, the dependant parents, the widowed daughter-in-law, the widowed granddaughter-in-law, the widowed great granddaughter-in-law. The maintenance and marriage of unmarried daughters, fatherless granddaughters, and fatherless and grandfatherless great granddaughters. of the intestate should likewise be provided for.

Heirs Class I.—If the right to maintenance is to be turned into share as has been done in case of the widow and the widowed daughter-in-law in Act XVIII of 1937, as amended by Act XI of 1938, or the marriage and education of unmarried girls is to be similarly provided for, all this may be done by a careful adjustment between provision and maintenance on the one side and inheritance on the other. Yet in no case the family property should be allowed to disintegrate into bits. Women therefore, should enjoy limited life interest in property inherited in this way. The unmarried daughter may get a fourth of her each brother's share as a guarantee, so to say, against her marriage, maintenance and educational expenses. In this arrangement for the unmarried daughter our witnesses were unanimous as was also the Committee.

Daughter's daughter is not an heir at all and is considered a distant relation. She should not come under Class I but in Class II after brother's son's son.

Clause 13.—Stridhan Property.—We have indicated above that in our opinion "Stridhan" should not include property inherited from males whether from the father's side or from the husband's side. No confusion arises if such inherited property involves women's limited estate, ultimately to come to the intestate's next male heir.

Barring this, the intestate's "Stridhan" should be inherited in the following order, viz.:—

(1) daughter, (2) son, (3) husband, (4) daughter's son and daughter's daughter, (5) son's son and son's daughter.

Clause 20.—As we have already said, it is essential that the abandonment of the Hindu religion and conversion into another religion must be made a ground for disqualification from inheritance.

As the Joint Committee has decided that the Bill should be recirculated, we do not desire to dwell upon other clauses of the Bill.

Lastly we note with extreme regret the flagrant breach in the case of this Bill of the salutory convention that in consideration of social measures affecting one community only, members belonging to other communities should not take part. But in this case the non-Hindu members taken into the Committee took part in deliberations on controversial questions and influenced the decisions of the Committee, and that in almost all cases against the wishes of the majority of the Hindu members.

NILAKANTHA DAS.
BAIJNATH BAJORIA.

We are of opinion that simultaneously with a change in the Law of Intestate Succession as proposed by us in this Bill, Government should take steps to repeal Act XXI of 1850 in so far as it affects succession to the property of a Hindu intestate, so that renunciation of the Hindu religion may be a bar to inheritance under the Hindu Law. There is a strong feeling in the Hindu community which we share that apostasy, i.e., change of religion should be a disqualification for inheritance, in the case of a Hindu. Whether the Act of 1850 should be dealt with separately or the change that we desire should be effected by the insertion of a suitable provision in the Hindu Code, Part I (Intestate Succession) Bill is a matter which we leave to Government to decide. All that we urge is that a change of religion should in future disqualify an heir in the absence of an express will to the contrary from inheriting property under the Hindu Law, but conversion to sects or creeds of Hindu origin such as Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, the Brahmo Samaj, the Prarthana Samaj or the Arya Samaj should not be regarded as a disqualification. We make this suggestion as we have been impressed with the strength of Hindu sentiment on this question, and as we think that it is intrinsically sound and not inconsistent with any principle of freedom of conscience in which we believe. The property to be disposed of in the case of a Hindu intestate is after all that of a Hindu and it may reasonably be assumed that he would have liked it to go to heirs who profess his religion. The Hindu Law treats apostasy as a disqualification for inheritance. We can see no reason why this provision of the Hindu Law should not be given effect to in the case of succession to a Hindu intestate.

[AS AMENDED BY THE JOINT COMMITTEE.]

(Words underlined or sidelined indicate the amendments, suggested by the Committee; asterisks indicate omissions.)

A Bill to amend and codify the Hindu Law relating to intestate succession.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and codify, in successive stages, the whole of the Hindu Law now in force in British India;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient first to amend and codify the general law of intestate succession;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

1. Short title, extent, application and commencement.—(1) This Act may be called the Hindu Code, Part I (Intestate Succession).

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall apply to any person who, if this Act were not in force, would be governed in matters of intestate succession by the Hindu Law; but it shall not apply—

(i) to agricultural land except in the Chief Commissioners' Provinces, or

(ii) to any estate which descends to a single heir by a customary or other rule of succession or by the terms of any grant or enactment.

(4) It shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1946.

2. Definitions and interpretation.—(1) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) one person is said to be an "agnate" (gotraja) of another, if the two are related by blood wholly through males;

(b) one person is said to be a "cognate" (bandhu) of another, if the two are related by blood, but not wholly through males;

(c) "heir" means any person, male or female, who is entitled to succeed to the property of an intestate under this Act;

(d) "heritable property" means property which belongs to an intestate in his or her own right and passes, whether he dies leaving male issue or not, by inheritance as distinct from survivorship;

Illustration.

All property of a Hindu governed by the Dayabhaga School of Hindu Law is heritable property, as it passes by inheritance and not by survivorship; so too is the separate property of a Hindu governed by any Mitakshara School of Hindu Law, as also the property in the hands of the last surviving coparcener, as such property also passes by inheritance and not by survivorship.

* * * * * *

(e) "related" means related by legitimate kinship, and any word expressing relationship or denoting a relative shall be construed accordingly;

(f) two persons are said to be related to each other by * "full blood" when they are descended from a common ancestor by the same wife, and by * "half blood" when they are descended from a common ancestor by different wives;

(g) "son" includes a dattaka son, dwyámushyáyana son and kritrima son, but not a dásíputra; and dattaka son, dwyámushyáyana son, kritrima son and dásíputra have the same meaning as in the Hindu Law;

(h) "stridhana" means property acquired by a woman by inheritance or devise, or at a partition, or by way of absolute gift in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance or by gift from a relative or stranger before, at, or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertions, or by purchase, or by prescription, or by any other mode whatsoever.

(2) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, words importing the masculine gender shall not be taken to include females, and for the purposes of this Act,—

(a) a person is deemed to die intestate in respect of all property of which he or she has not made a testamentary disposition capable of taking effect;

* * * * * *

(b) the domicile of a person to whom this Act applies shall be determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sections 6 to 18, both inclusive, of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (XXXIX of 1925);

(c) when an adoption takes place,—

(i) in the case of a dattaka son, the natural tie is severed and is replaced by the tie created by the adoption,

(ii) in the case of a dwyámushyáyana son, the natural tie continues side by side with the tie created by the adoption,

(iii) in the case of a kritrima son, the natural tie continues, while the tie created by the adoption is limited to the person adopted and the person or persons adopting him.

Illustration.

A adopts C, son of B. C has a son, D, born to him after adoption. Then, for the purposes of inheritance, the following consequences will result, depending upon whether C was adopted as a dattaka, Dwyámushyáyana or kritrima son of A.

If C was adopted as a dattaka son, he becomes the son of A and ceases to be the son of B. He also becomes the grandson of A's father and the nephew of A's brother, and so on. He ceases to be the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. Likewise, D becomes the grandson of A but not of B.

If C was adopted as a dwyámushyáyana son, he becomes the son of A, but continues to be the son of B as well. He also becomes the grandson of A's father and the nephew of A's brother, but continues as well to be the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. Likewise, D becomes the grandson of A, and of B as well.

If C was adopted as a kritrima son, he becomes the son of A while continuing to be the son of B as well. He does not, however, becomes the grandson of A's father or the nephew of A's brother, but remains the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. D on birth becomes the grandson of B and not of A.

3. Application of Act.—This Act regulates the succession to the heritable property of a person to whom this Act applies, other than one governed by the Marumakkattayam, Aliyasantana or Nambudri law of inheritance, dying intestate after the commencement of this Act, in the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the property is movable property, unless it is proved that the intestate was not domiciled in British India at the time of death.

(b) where the property is immovable property situated in British India, whether at the time of death the intestate was domiciled in British India or not:

* * * * * *

Provided * that upon the death of any woman who at the commencement of this Act had the limited estate known as the Hindu woman's estate in any heritable property, such property shall devolve on the persons who would under this Act have been the heirs of the last full owner thereof if he had died intestate immediately after her.

Succession to the property of males.

4. Devolution of heritable property of males.—The heritable property of a male intestate shall devolve according to the rules laid down in this Act—

(a) upon the enumerated heirs referred to in section 5, if any;
(b) if there is no enumerated heir, upon his agnates, if any;
(c) if there is no agnate, upon his cognates, if any;
(d) if there is no cognate, upon the heirs referred to in section 10, if any.

5. Enumerated heirs.—The following relatives of an intestate are his enumerated heirs:—

*Class I.—Parent, widow, * descendants and widow of descendant:—*

(1) Parents if dependent on the intestate, widow, son, daughter, son and widow of a pre-deceased son, and son of a pre-deceased son of a pre-deceased son (the heirs in this entry being hereinafter in this Act referred to as "simultaneous heirs").
(2) Daughter's son.
(3) Son's daughter.
(4) Daughter's daughter.

Class II.—Mother, father and his descendants:—

(1) Mother unless, as dependent on the intestate, she has inherited as an heir included in entry (1) of Class I.
(2) Father unless, as dependent on the intestate, he has inherited as an heir included in entry (1) of Class I.
(3) Brother.
(4) Brother's son.
(5) Brother's son's son.
(6) Sister.
(7) Sister's son.
(8) Brother's daughter.
(9) Sister's daughter.

Class III.—Father's mother, father's father and his descendants:—

(1) Father's mother.
(2) Father's father.
(3) Father's brother.
(4) Father's brother's son.
(5) Father's brother's son's son.
(6) Father's sister's son.

Class IV.—Father's father's mother, father's father's father and his descendants:—

(1) Father's father's mother.
(2) Father's father's father.
(3) Father's father's brother.
(4) Father's father's brother's son.
(5) Father's father's brother's son's son.
(6) Father's father's sister's son.

Class V.—Mother's mother, mother's father and his descendants:—

(1) Mother's mother.
(2) Mother's father.
(3) Mother's brother.
(4) Mother's brother's son.
(5) Mother's brother's son's son.
(6) Mother's sister's son.

6. Order of succession among enumerated heirs.—Among the enumerated heirs, those in one Class shall be preferred to those in any succeeding Class; and within each Class, those included in one entry shall be preferred to those included in any succeeding entry, while those included in the same entry shall take together.

Illustrations.

(i) The surviving relatives of an intestate are his widow, his mother and his father's father. The widow who is included in Class I is preferred to the mother who is in Class II and the father's father who is in Class III.

(ii) The surviving relatives are two daughters and a son's daughter. The daughters who are included in entry (1) of Class I are preferred to the son's daughter who is in entry (3) of the same Class, and the two daughters take together.

(iii) The surviving relatives are a widow, two sons, three daughters, two grandsons by a pre-deceased son and a great-grantson by another pre-deceased son's pre-deceased son. All of them, being enumerated heirs included in entry (1) of Class 1, succeed simultaneously, no one excluding the others.

7. Manner of distribution among simultaneous heirs.—The distribution of an intestate's property among the simultaneous heirs in entry (1) of Class I shall take place according to the following rules, namely:—

(a) The intestate's widow, or if there is more than one widow all the widows together, shall take one share.

(b) Each son of the intestate shall take one share, whether he was undivided or divided from, or re-united with, the intestate.

(c) Sons, sons of pre-deceased sons, and sons of pre-deceased sons of pre-deceased sons, shall take per stirpes, that is to say, the sons of a pre-deceased son shall take the share which would have been taken by him if he had been alive at the time of the intestate's death; and likewise, the grandsons of a pre-deceased son shall take the share which their father would have taken if he had been alive at the time aforesaid.

(d) Each of the intestate's daughters shall take half a share, whether she is unmarried, married or a widow; rich or poor; and with or without issue or possibility of issue.

(e) Each parent shall take one-eighth of a share; but any property so inherited shall on his or her dying intestate devolve upon the heirs of the intestate son from whom the property was so inherited in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof at the time of the parent's death.

(f) The widow of a pre-deceased son, if she has no son or son's son surviving, shall take half the share which her husband would have received if he had been alive at the time of his father's death, and if she has a son or son's son surviving she shall take one-fourth of the share which her husband would have received if he had been alive at the time of his father's death, and the son or grandson's share receivable under clause (c) of this section shall be reduced accordingly.

Illustrations.

(i) The surviving relatives of an intestate are three sons' five grandsons by a pre-deceased son, and two great-grandsons by a pre-deceased son of another pre-deceased son. Each son takes 1/5th of the heritable estate, each grandson 1/25th, and each great grandson 1/10th.

(ii) Only a widow or daughter, and no other simultaneous heir, survives an intestate. The widow or daughter, as the case may be, takes the whole of the heritable estate.

(iii) The surviving relatives of an intestate are two widows, a divided son, two undivided sons, an unmarried daughter, two married daughters, a widowed daughter, and four grandsons by a pre-deceased son. The two widows together take one share, each of the three sons takes one share, each of the four daughters takes half a share, and the four grandsons together take on share. Thus, each widow takes 1/14th of the heritable estate, each son 1/7th, each daughter 1/14th, and each grandson 1/28th.

8. Order of succession among non-enumerated heirs.—(1) The order of succession among agnates and cognates, other than enumerated heirs, shall be determined by applying the Rules of Preference in section 9.

(2) For the purpose of applying the said Rules, relationship shall be reckoned from the intestate to the heir in terms of degrees of ascent, or degrees of descent, or both, as the case may be.

(3) Degrees of ascent and degrees of descent shall be computed in the manner indicated in the illustrations below:—

Illustrations.

(i) The heir to be considered is the father's mother's father of the intestate. He has no degrees of descent but three degrees of ascent represnted, in order, by (1) the intestate's father, (2) that father's mother, and (3) her father (the heir).

(ii) The heir to be considered is the father's mother's faher's mother of the intestate. She has no degrees of decent, but four degrees of ascent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's father, (2) that father's mother, (3) her father, and (4) his mother (the heir).

(iii) The heir to be considered is the son's daughter's son's daughter of the intestate. She has no degrees of ascent, but four degrees of descent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's son, (2) that son's daughter, (3) her son, and (4) his daughter (the heir).

(iv) The heir to be considered is the mother's father's father's daughter's son of the intestate. He has three degrees of ascent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's mother, (2) her father, and (3) that father's father, and two degrees of descent represented, in order, by (1) the daughter of the common ancestor, viz., the mother's father's father, and (2) her son (the heir).

(4) A woman shall be entitled to inherit as an agnate of her father and his agnates, and shall not, by reason only of her marriage, be entitled to inherit as an agnate of her husband or his agnates.

9. Rules of Preference.—The Rules of Preference referred to in section 8 are as follows:—

Rule 1.—Of two heirs the one who has fewer or no degrees of ascent is preferred.

Rule 2.—Where the number of degrees of ascent is the same or none, that heir is preferred who has fewer or no degrees of descent.

Rule 3.—Where the number of degrees of descent is also the same or none, the heir who is in the male line is preferred to the heir who is in the female line at the first point (counting from the intestate to the heir) where the lines of the two heirs can be so distinguished.

Rule 4.—Where neither heir is entitled to be preferred to the other under the foregoing Rules, they take together.

Illustrations.

In the following illustrations, the letters F and M stand respectively for the father and the mother in that portion of the line which ascends from the intestate to the common ancestor, and the letters S and D for the son and the daughter respectively in that portion of the line which descends from the common ancestor to the heir. Thus MFSS stands for the intestate's mother's father's son's son (mother's brother's son), and FDS for the intestate's father's daughter's son (sister's son).

(i) The competing heirs are (1) FFSD (father's brother's daughter) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). Although No. (2) is descended from a nearer ancestor yet, as No. (1) is an agnate while No. (2) is only a cognate, No. (1) is preferred to No. (2).

(ii) The competing heirs are (1) SDSS (son's daughter's son's son) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). No. (1) who has no degree of ascent is preferred to No. (2) who has one degree of ascent.

(iii) The competing heirs are (1) FDDD (sister's daughter's daughter) and (2) MFSD (maternal uncle's daughter). The former who has one degree of ascent is preferred to the latter who has two such degrees.

(iv) The competing heirs are (1) FDSSS (sister's son's son's son) and (2) MFSSD (maternal uncle's son's daughter). The former who has only one degree of ascent is preferred to the latter who has two such degrees.

(v) The competing heirs are (1) MFDSS (mother's sister's son's son) and (2) MFFDS (mother's father's sister's son). The former who has two degrees of ascent is preferred to the latter who has three such degrees.

(vi) The competing heirs are (1) MFM (mother's father's mother) and (2) FFFDSS (father's father's sister's son's son). The number of degrees of ascent in both cases is the same, viz., three, but the former has no degree of descent while the latter has three such degrees. The former is therefore preferred.

(vii) The competing heirs are (1) FMF (father's mother's father) and (2) MFF (mother's father's father). The number of degrees of ascent in both cases is the same, and there are no degrees of descent. The lines of the two heirs diverge at the very first point, No. (1) being in the male line and No. (2) in the female line. No. (1) is preferred to No. (2).

(viii) The competing heirs are (1) FDSS (sister's son's son) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). The heirs are equally near both in ascent and descent. The dissimilarity in the lines occurs at the third point. At this point No. (1) is in the male line and No. (2) in the female line. No. (1) is therefore preferred.

(ix) The competing heirs are (1) FMFSS (father's mother's brother's son) and (2) FMFDS (father's mother's sister's son). The former is preferred.

(x) The competing heirs are (1) FDDS (sister's daughter's son) and (2) FDDD (sister's daughter's daughter). The former is preferred.

(xi) The competing heirs are a daughter's daughter's son of one sister (FDDDS) and a daughter's daughter's son of another sister (FDDDS). Both of them take the estate in equal shares.

10. Heirs not related by blood.—If there is no cognate entitled to succeed under section 4, the heritable property of the intestate shall devolve, in the first instance, upon his preceptor (áchárya); if there is no preceptor, upon the intestate's disciple (sishya); and if there is no disciple, upon the intestate's fellow-student (sa-brahmachárí).

11. Rules for hermits, etc.—(1) Where a person completely and finally renounces the world by becoming a hermit (vánaprastha), an ascetic (yati or sanyási), or a perpetual religious student (naishthika brahmachárí), his property shall devolve upon his heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if he had died intestate in respect thereof at the time of such renunciation.

(2) Any person who has so renounced the world shall not inherit to any relative of his, by blood or marriage, but the inheritance shall, in such a case, pass to the heir who is next in the order of succession.

(3) Any property acquired by such a person after his renunciation shall, on his death, devolve, not upon his relatives by blood or marriage, but as follows:—

(a) in the case of a hermit, upon a spiritual brother belonging to the same hermitage (dharmabhrátraikatirthi);

(b) in the case of an ascetic, upon his virtuous disciple (sacchishya);

(c) in the case of a perpetual religious student, upon his preceptor (áchárya).

Stridhana.

12. Right of women over stridhana.—A woman shall have the same rights over her stridhana, including the right to dispose of it by transfer inter vivos or by will, as a man has over property acquired by him in the like manner, that is to say, a woman's rights over her stridhana shall not be deemed to be restricted in any respect whatsoever, by reason only of her sex.

13. Order of succession to stridhana.—The stridhana of a woman dying intestate, in so far as it consists of heritable property, shall devolve as follows:—

(a) Property inherited by her from her husband or his father, his father's father or his father's father's father shall devolve upon her husband's heirs in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been her husband's and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after her death.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this clause, property devolving on another widow, of the husband, whether under this clause or under entry (9) in clause (b), shall be deemed to be property inherited by such widow from her husband.

(b) Other property shall devolve upon the following relatives of the intestate, in the order mentioned, namely:—

(1) Son and daughter;
(2) Daughter's son and daughter's daughter;
(3) Son's son and son's daughter;
(4) Husband;
(5) Mother;
(6) Father;
(7) Husband's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after his wife's death;
(8) Mother's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been hers and she had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after her daughter's death;
(9) Father's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after his daughter's death.

(c) Where of two or more heirs of the intestate, no one is entitled to be preferred to any other under the provisions of this section, they shall take together, a son, daughter's son or son's son taking half as much only as his sister.

14. Stirpital succession to stridhana in certain cases.—If the stridhana of a woman devolves on two or more of the following relatives, namely, daughters', sons and daughters or sons' sons and * daughters, they shall take it per stirpes and not per capita.

Illustration.

The surviving relatives of a woman are four grand-daughters by one daughter, A, and three grand-daughters by another daughter, B. Each of A's daughters takes 1/8th of the property and each of B's daughters takes 1/6th.

General Provisions.

15. Full blood preferred to half blood.—Heirs related to an intestate by the full blood shall be preferred to heirs related by the half blood, if the nature of the relationship is the same in every other respect.

Illustrations.

(i) A brother by the full blood is preferred to a brother by the half blood; but a brother by the half blood succeeds before a brother's son by the full blood, a brother being a nearer heir than a brother's son.

(ii) A paternal uncle by the half blood is preferred to a paternal uncle's son by the full blood, an uncle being a nearer heir than an uncle's son.

(iii) A full brother's daughter's daughter is preferred to a half brother's daughter's daughter; but the former is not preferred to a half brother's daugter's son, as the nature of the relationship is not the same in the two cases. The latter, who is a nearer heir by virtue of Rule 3 in section 9, is preferred though he is only of the half blood.

16. Right of child in womb.—A person who was in the womb at the time of the death of an intestate and who is subsequently born alive shall have the same right to inherit to the intestate as if he or she had been born before the death of the intestate.

17. Rights of surviving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage.—The surving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage contracted by a male or female Hindu outside his or her caste shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be treated in like manner as the surviving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage contracted within his or her own caste.

18. Disqualification of widow who was unchaste during husband's lifetime.—If an intestate's widow has been unchaste during his lifetime and after her marriage, she shall, unless the unchastity has been condoned by her husband, be disqualified from succeeding to his heritable property, and it shall devolve on his other heirs as it would in her absence:

Provided that the right of a widow to inherit to her husband shall not be questioned on the ground aforesaid, unless—a Court of Law has found her to have been unchaste as aforesaid in a proceeding to which she and her husband were parties and in which the matter was specifically in issue, the finding of the Court not having been subsequently reversed.

* * * * * *

19. Murderer disqualified.—A person who commits murder or abets the commission of murder in furtherance of his or her succession to any property shall be disqualified from inheriting such property; and the inheritance shall, in such a case, pass to the heir who is next in the order of succession.

20. Disease, defect, etc., not to disqualify.—No person shall be disqualified from succeeding to any property on the ground of any disease, defect or deformity or, save as provided in sub-section (2) of section 11 and sections 18 and 19, on any other ground whatsoever.

21. Mode of succession of two or more heirs.—If two or more heirs succeed together to the property of any intestate, they shall take the property—

(a) save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, per capita and not per stirpes; and

(b) as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants.

22. Escheat.—If the intestate has left no heir, or no heir qualified to succeed to his or her heritable property, such property shall go to the Crown.

23. Repeals.—The enactments specified in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

APPORTIONMENT ORDER.

Faridpur.—No. 1386L.R.—25th January 1944.—Under section 114 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (Act VIII of 1885), the Governor has determined that in police-stations Pangsa, Rajbari, Baliakandi, Bhusna, Nagarkanda and Bhanga and parts of police-stations Faridpur, Sadarpur, Sibchar and Char Bhadrasan in the district of Faridpur where the preparation of a record-of-rights has been undertaken under notification No. 5118L.R., dated 7th May 1940, the landlords' and tenants' share of the cost for the survey and preparation of record-of-rights including the estimated cost of maintenance of boundary marks for a period of fifteen years shall be apportioned and recovered as specified below:—

1. The rate of 13 annas 6 pies shall be levied per acre of which the raiyats including persons holding non-agricultural tenancies analogous to raiyati holdings shall pay at 6 annas 9 pies per acre and their landlords of all grades together at 6 annas 9 pies per acre.

Common lands such as rivers, roads, khals, halats, burial grounds, burning ghats, etc., used by the public, but not appertaining to any tenancy, will be excluded from assessment. Tanks, even if used by the public and not appertaining to any tenancy will not be excluded.

2. Landlords shall pay the raiyats' share for lands in their possession and raiyats shall pay at the full raiyati rate for lands comprised in their holdings.

3. Rent-free holders, whether of the grade of raiyats or tenure-holders, shall pay the whole of the landlords' share for their lands and also the raiyats' share for lands in their khas possession.

4. As between the different grades of landlords, the landlords' share shall be apportioned thus:—

(a) permanent tenure-holders whose rent is fixed in perpetuity shall pay their own share of the cost and that of the landlords superior to them;

(b) other permanent tenure-holders, and temporary tenure-holders whose lease has still over fifteen years to run, shall pay three-fourths of the landlords' share, and their landlords shall pay the remaining one-fourth;

(c) temporary tenure-holders whose lease has fifteen years or less to run shall pay 15/16ths of the share which they would pay in accordance with (b) above, if they were permanent tenure-holders; and so on proportionately, according to the number of years of the lease to run; and

(d) temporary tenure-holders who do not hold on a lease or for fixed term shall pay half of the landlords' share.

Explanation.—The calculation shall be made from the lowest grade of landlords immediately above the raiyats; the period for which the lease of the tenure or under-tenure is to run is to be reckoned in each case from the close of the agricultural year in which the record is finally published.

5. Under-raiyats having occupancy right or protected under section 48C(e), proviso (i) (1) and (2), shall pay at the rate of six annas nine pies per acre, while other under-raiyats shall pay at four annas for a tenancy or part of a tenancy recorded in one village.

6. Dakhalkar non-agricultural tenants having a status analogous to that of raiyats will pay at six annas nine pies per khatian.

Dakhalkar non-agricultural tenants having a status analogous to that of under-raiyats will pay at four annas for a tenancy recorded in one village.

7. For lands held by Railways, the cost will be realised at the rate of six annas per acre.

8. Jalkardars for 15 years or less shall pay at the rate of half anna per rupee or rent multiplied by the number of years the jalkars have to run divided by 16. In temporary jalkars having more than 15 years to run and in permanent jalkars, the rate shall be half anna per rupee of rent. The minimum charge for a jalkar khatian shall be four annas. The rent-receiver of such jalkars will pay at the same rate as jalkardars.

9. Usufructuary mortgagees shall pay 15/16ths of the cost and the mortgagor 1/16th, if the mortgage has 15 years to run or more. If it has less than 15 years to run, the cost will be divided proportionately between the mortgagor and the mortgagee to the number of years to run out of fifteen.

10. The calculation shall be as follows:—

(a) it shall be made to the nearest anna;

(b) areas less than one acre shall be charged for as one acre;

(c) for broken areas over 1 acre, there shall be no charge for the broken portion, if it is less than half an acre; but if the broken portion be half an acre or more, it shall be taken as a full acre; and Theorems.

The sum of the angles of a triangle is equal to two right angles; and the two corollaries thereto.

If two triangles have two angles of the one equal to two angles of the other, each to each, and also one side of the one equal to the corresponding side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two right-angled triangles have their hypotenuses equal and one other side of the one equal to one other side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

The opposite sides and angles of a parallelogram are equal, each diagonal bisects the parallelogram; and the diagonals bisect one another.

If there are three or more parallel straight lines and the intercepts made by them on any straight line that cuts them are equal, then the corresponding intercepts on any other straight line that cuts them are also equal.

Parallelograms on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Triangles on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Equal triangles on the same or equal bases are of the same altitude.
